SHAPPARD GUILTY; FACES LIFE TERM

$2,444 IN CASH, CHECKS STOLEN FROM GROCERY

Big Bear Office Looted During Rush Hour; Police Warn Against Cashing Checks.

Warnings about cashing checks without positive identification were issued last night to stores and beer parlors by Marion police following a report of a theft from the Big Bear Super Market, 245 North Main street, at about 5 o'clock yesterday.

Forest T. Disbennett, manager of the store, placed the loss at $2,444.11 with about $200 in cash and the remainder in checks.

The theft was discovered at 5:15 p. m. yesterday when one of the clerks, Mrs. Jean McGuire, went to the office to get some one dollar bills. She found the cash drawer pried open and the checks and cash gone.

Police Notified

Mr. Disbennett, who had gone out for supper a half hour before, returned and notified police immediately. Chief William E. Marks assigned patrolmen to notifying the various stores, restaurants and bars in town hoping to get a lead on the thief should he attempt to cash one of the endorsed checks. He cautioned all to require an endorsement if the person was unknown. Apparently no attempt was made in town last night to cash any of the stolen checks.

Chief Marks said that Mr. Disbennett and the clerks were able to give the names of some of the customers for whom checks were cashed.

Occurs at Rush Hour

The theft occurred at the rush hour when all registers were working trying to serve the some 250 buyers. The office is a small cubicle in the front of the store several feet from the aisles with glass partitions starting about four feet from the floor.

Police said apparently the thief walked into the office, shut the door behind him then stooped down out of sight while prying the drawer open. Marks of a sharp instrument could be seen on the wood and lock.

Mr. Disbennett said the door was usually kept shut. Time of the theft was placed between 4:45 when the manager left for supper and 5:15 p. m. when he returned almost immediately after the discovery was made.

KNUTSON PREPARES NEW TAX CUT BILL

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13—Chairman Knutson (R-Minn) of the house ways and means committee, said today he will introduce on the last day of the special session a bill to cut income taxes by perhaps $5,000,000,000 a year.

This will place the measure in position for early action when congress meets again in January.

The proposed cuts were reported to be as follows:

- Increase personal exemptions from the present $500 to $600, thus cutting 6,000,000 low income earners off the tax rolls as well as giving the other 42,500,000 taxpayers a reduction. Estimated cost to treasury, $1,900,000,000.
- General application of the community tax principle under which husbands and wives in some states are permitted to divide their incomes for tax purposes. Cost in revenue, $600,000,000.
- Percentage cut—33 per cent on taxable incomes up to $1,000; 20 per cent on taxable incomes in the $1,000-$4,000 bracket; 10 per cent on taxable incomes over $4,000. Revenue loss, $2,400,000,-000.

The bill also would cut gift and estate taxes by around $150,000,000.

DIESEL ENGINE TAKEN BY ERIE

First of 9 Powerful Locomotives Delivered for Hornell-Jersey City Run.

Special to The Star

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 13—The first of nine powerful, 6,000-horsepower American Locomotive Co. diesel road locomotives is going into fast freight service today between Jersey City, N. J., and Hornell, N. Y., on the main line of the Erie Railroad, Robert E. Woodruff, president of the rail system, reported. The others will follow at the rate of about one a week.

Purchased expressly for freight service these long-nose "Alco" diesels are 204 feet long with four power-cars that are controlled from the engineer's swivel chair in the locomotive cab. Each unit develops 1,500 horsepower. Sixteen traction motors deliver electric power to the locomotive driving wheels.

Ordered in January this year, Erie's latest additions to its already large and still growing diesel locomotive fleet will haul up to 125 loaded cars on their Hornell-Jersey City run at a maximum speed of 65 miles per hour, Mr. Woodruff said. These engines were made up by the American Locomotive Company and General Electric Company at Schenectady, N. Y.

With the delivery at Binghamton, N. Y., today of the first of these nine prime movers, the Erie is rapidly acquiring one of the largest diesel fleets in the east. Including the engines now being delivered, the Erie will have 18 diesel-power locomotives operating in freight service, seven diesels on through-line passenger runs and 44 units for handling yard switching and classification operations. When the 24 switchers still on order are received next year, the Erie will have a total of 93 diesel locomotives in service at various points throughout its 2,229 mile system serving six states, Mr. Woodruff explained, adding that this entire modern motive power fleet represents an aggregate investment of about $20,000,000.

MORE PRICE HIKES SEEN FOR OIL, GAS

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Dec. 13 — A new round of price increases for gasoline and other petroleum products is expected in oil circles to get underway next week.

Initial move in that direction so far as the east coast states are concerned was taken late yesterday at Socony-Vacuum when it advanced motor gasoline, aviation gasoline, home heating oils, light Diesel oil and kerosene by nine-tenth of a cent a gallon. Heavy fuel oil was upped 38 cents a barrel.

Whether this price pattern will be followed by other leading marketers on the east coast is undecided. Spokesmen for the various firms indicated, but all were in agreement that adjustments in prices will be necessary in view of the recent industry-wide increase in crude oil by 50 cents a barrel. That was the reason advanced by Socony-Vacuum.

3 "MAD DOG" KILLERS SHOOT CHICAGO TRIO

Two Others Wounded; Police Kill One Gunman and Capture Another.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Dec. 13—Three gunmen, described by police as "mad dog killers," killed three men and wounded two others before one of the gunmen was slain by police machine-gun bullets today.

Police seized one of the gunmen and hunted for a third after the wild shooting spree by the trio last night and early today.

Two of the victims were slain in a "gang ride." Two others, also abducted and shot, escaped although they were wounded, one seriously. One man was slain in a South Side garage, from where the trio had forced the four other men into their car and had driven into western suburbs.

Bodies of two of the kidnaped men were found today about 10 hours after the trio had slain John Kuesis, 33, owner of a used furniture store, at the garage of his brother, Nick, 40.

Slayer Identified

Kuesis' slayer was identified by police as Tom Daley, 42, an ex-convict, who was slain by a squad of detectives early today as he attempted to flee from a West Side apartment. His slaying following the seizure of one of his companions.

One of Daley's companions, seized as he entered a West Side hotel where he was spending his honeymoon with his 17 year old bride of 10 days, was identified by Capt. Eugene Barry as Lowell Fentress, 19, Barry said Fentress told him the third man in the gang and driver of the car was James Morelli, also 19.

Police, who found Daley at Morelli's apartment, continued their search for Morelli. Barry said Fentress, in calmly relating details of the shooting, described Daley as being "wild, crazy drunk" last night.

Daley's companion, Capt. Andrew Barry said, told him that after shooting John Kuesis and abducting four men in the garage they drove to Brookfield where they shot John Kuesis' brother, Nick, and Frank Baker, 17, and pushed their bodies from the car.

Nick, not seriously wounded, telephoned police.

Later, Barry said Fentress told him, they shot and killed Emil Schmikal, 18, and a youth identi-

Tantrum in Telephone Booth Costs Man $25

Fred William Cammann Jr. of Lakewood, O. should have learned four things in municipal court this morning.

He should have learned: first, he should read instructions on pay phones before making a call; second, he should keep his temper in check; third, he shouldn't go around yanking receivers from pay phones; and fourth, he should have to let the nickel go, it was considerably less than $25 and costs.

Police arrested him at 7:51 p. m. yesterday when employes at the Marion Hotel reported that he became angry while making a phone call after he put his nickel in with no results. He couldn't get the nickel back, he still didn't have his number and his pleas to the telephone operator were useless. Hotel employes said Cammann became angry and jerked the receiver from the telephone. It was still in his pocket when he was taken to the police station.

He pleaded guilty when charged with disorderly conduct this morning and was fined $25 and costs.

Lewis Walkout from A.F.L. Linked with 1948 Election

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13—John L. Lewis has divorced his 600,000 miners from the AFL again in a move viewed by some labor men today as a sign that he intends to play independent in the 1948 presidential election.

The second split between the United Mine Workers and the American Federation of Labor came 11 years after Lewis first marched them out of the parent body and less than two years after he marched them in again. It was no surprise.

The 67-year-old Lewis had had his hat in his hand ever since the last AFL convention, when the executive council refused to go along with him in an all-out fight against the non-Communist provision of the Taft-Hartley act.

The formal break came last night with a typical Lewis gesture of contempt and a typical five-syllable word which fell like an epithet—"disaffiliate."

"Green AFL—We disaffiliate. 12/12/47."

These words, scrawled in green crayon on a torn-off half sheet of cheap paper, were all the notice Lewis sent President William Green of the AFL.

In New York, Green said only that he was "very sorry indeed" to learn that Lewis and his mine workers had pulled out of the Federation. He said he had not seen the mine leader's message, but expected to find it waiting for him at his Washington office today.

While other union officials declined to be quoted offhand, several said a desire by Lewis for political independence next year probably hastened the end.

In view of his strained relations with other AFL leaders they said it was likely that he did not want to be committed to whatever political role may be played by the new AFL "Labor's Educational and Political league."

K. C. Adams, editor of the United Mine Workers' Journal, told reporters there has been "no deal" with any labor organization to combine forces for the election campaign.

Lewis has exhibited his political independence before. He broke with the CIO in 1940 when the CIO plumped for President Roosevelt against his wishes.

The miners, after 46 years with the AFL, had joined the CIO in 1936 during the great split between proponents of craft and industrial type unions which Lewis himself brought about.

The miners came back to the AFL in January, 1946.

Miners Solidly Back of Lewis

By The Associated Press

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 13—John L. Lewis' decision to take his 600,000 United Mine Workers from the AFL was a big topic of discussion in western Pennsylvania coal fields today—and almost to a man the miners were backing their bushy-browed chief.

A few hours after Lewis announced the break last night the miners gathered in little groups in company stores and on street corners. There was some dissension, but very little. Typical of the pro-Lewis comment was this statement from Tom Brown, vice president of the UMW Local 5085:

"John L. Lewis always has played smart and he's done it this time. He's the greatest labor leader in the world. We're back of him 100 per cent."

George Hopkinson, 43-year-old father of six children who has been digging coal 20 years, was one of the few who dissented sharply with Brown, saying:

"I don't think it's a good thing. If we hadn't been affiliated with the AFL for so many years, where would either of us (the AFL and the UMW) have been?"

At nearby Coverdale, a group of miners was all smiles when interviewed. William Donohue, wiry little Irishman, didn't mince words as he said:

"John took up out (of the AFL) before. We stuck with him then and he proved he was right. We'll stick with him now. You can bet your last buck on that."

"That's for sure," A. B. Campbell declared. "I've been around the mines longer than most of these guys, and John's always right. I've always been for him and I always will!"

TRUMAN PLAN NOT YET DEAD

House Banking Group Still Keeps Door Open on Anti-Inflation Proposal.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13—The house banking committee said today it has not slammed the door on President Truman's anti-inflation program but contended some of his proposals might lead to "distortions" and "diversion."

The committee said the President himself feared a year ago that selective price controls might lead to these things.

The group filed with the house a formal report approving a G.O.P. substitute for Mr. Truman's plan, centering around permission for business to make agreements to cut prices without violating the anti-trust laws.

The Republican measure is slated for house consideration Monday.

As the report was filed, Republican senators prepared to review a cost of living statement submitted by Senator Taft (R-Ohio). Senators who saw the preliminary draft said that it too left a loophole through which the G.O.P. could fall back on some form of compulsory action if its proposed voluntary methods fail to halt rising prices.

Some Provisions Not Attacked

These senators said the advance statement was significantly lacking in any attack on Mr. Truman's request for standby wage-price and rationing authority. Taft's statement proposes to set out G.O.P. aims.

In its report to the house, the banking committee said it "has endeavored to comply with that part of the President's program which it believes can safely be put into effect immediately."

"The committee expects," it said, "to continue to study the whole program and to explore its potential consequences in the next regular session of the congress."

The committee said no administration witnesses have been able to tell how the stand-by controls asked by Mr. Truman would operate until voluntary efforts had been tried, so it "became clear"

Service Club Members Again Chosen for Yule Kettle Duty

Approximately 80 men, representing service clubs of the city, will again volunteer their services in manning the Salvation Army kettles, Saturday, Dec. 20, in the interest of the Army's Christmas baskets for less fortunate families in the city.

Sixteen men from each club, Junior Chamber of Commerce, Kiwanis, Exchange and Lions clubs will man the kettles in the downtown district from 10 a. m. until 6 p. m. The Lions club plans to man two kettles throughout the day, one at Uhler's and the other at the Schulte cigar store corners. The Junior Chamber of Commerce will hold forth at the National City bank corner, the Kiwanis club at the Kresge 25c to Dollar store and the Exchange club members at the Marion County bank. The two-man teams will work in hourly shifts.

Manning the kettles each year in the interest of this worthy cause is an annual date on the calendars of these service clubs and records show that their labors, plus the generosity of the public, get results—the funds realized amounting to an appreciable sum.

This year, as in former years, the contributions will be used to purchase grocery orders for the community's less fortunate families at Christmas time. These gifts will include grocery orders, toys, candy and fruit for children and sunshine baskets to be distributed at the City hospital, rest homes, the Children's home, County home and County jail.

The kettles, which have been on the streets at various times since Thanksgiving, will be at various points in the business district each day until Dec. 24, starting Monday.

5-DAY TRIAL IN SLAYING OF GIRL CLOSED

Arguments of Attorneys and Judge's Charge Completed Shortly Before Noon.

RAY A. SHAPPARD

The life of Ray A. Shappard charged with first degree murder in the slaying of Roxie Ann Green is in the hands of the jury.

The eight men and four women comprising the jury for the five day trial, retired to the jury room at 11 a. m. Common Pleas Judge Paul D. Smith delivered a 45 minute charge instructing the first murder trial jury to sit in the Marion county court since 1938 on the possible verdicts that could be returned in the case.

County Prosecutor James E. Reed made the concluding statement for the state followed by the summation by defense counsel Ralph and Dwight Carhart. Rebuttal to the concluding arguments for the accused were made by special Assistant Prosecutor Russell M. Wilhelm.

In his charge Judge Smith informed the jury that five possible verdicts could be returned. They are: guilty to the charge of first degree murder; guilty to the charge with recommendation for mercy; not guilty to first degree murder but guilty to the charge of second degree murder; not guilty to the charge of second degree murder but guilty to the charge of manslaughter; or a verdict of not guilty to any of the three charges.

Asks Death Penalty

The state has asked that the jury return a verdict of guilty of first degree murder, without mercy.

In his charge, Judge Smith pointed out that a recommendation for mercy in connection with a verdict of guilty to the first degree murder charge would mean a life sentence with the defendant not eligible for parole. The defendant could however be pardoned by the governor, the judge explained.

The courtroom was again jammed as the case moved toward a conclusion. Standees filled the aisle along the sides and to the rear of the courtroom. Many in obvious hope that the jury would conclude its findings and soon report a verdict held fast to their seats after the jury retired.

Shappard, more nervous than at any time in the proceedings to date, fidgeted virtually continuously as the summations were given by the state and by his counsel. He listened closely to the charge given the jury.

Mrs. Shappard, seated by his side at the rear of counsel table, wept as Ralph Carhart in closing argument read Shappard's service record to the jury. At the defendant's side since the third day of the trial when the court began to receive testimony, the small dark haired woman had until this morning followed progress of the trial without visible emotion.

Shappard Speaks to Wife

Shappard, observing her in tears, leaned over and spoke a few words to her as she dabbed at her eyes with a small handkerchief. It was the first display of emotion on the part of Shappard to be evidenced in the trial.

His composure, noticeably indifferent since he was first charged with the crime, has apparently undergone a change as the case has progressed. The strain of waiting while his life is at stake is apparently beginning to tell on the blond, 32-year-old Prospect man. He shifted uneasily in his chair as the state summed its case against him, blinking often as Attorney Wilhelm answered the final plea of the defense for mercy. As he awaits the verdict of the jury he is by no means the same indifferent, almost cocky, individual of five days ago.

Prosecutor's Summation Brief

Prosecutor Reed summed up the state's case in a brief address to the jury lasting not more than 10 minutes. Referring to the signed confession which the jury will examine while deliberating its findings, Reed pointed out a conflict in Shappard's story.

According to the confession Roxie Green had been riding on a fender of the car, Shappard in his statement in answer to the question, "What did you do after she fell off?" replied "I picked her up and put her back 'in' the car."

Summing for the defense Dwight Carhart told the jury that the state had gone over very lightly some of the elements in the crime. The state, he said, had failed to prove beyond a reasonable doubt each and every allegation under the first degree murder indictment.

Says Premeditation Not Proved

Concerning premeditation, which must be proved on a first degree charge, the younger Carhart declared the state has only the statement of Sheriff LeRoy Retterer and Deputy Sheriff Edgar Fink as evidence that Shappard had premeditated the murder.

"Why isn't the question and an-

14-YEAR-OLD BABY SITTER DISAPPEARS

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Dec. 13—Cleveland area police today began a search for a 14-year-old baby sitter who disappeared from a suburban Bratenahl home from which a pistol, a panel truck and $50 in pennies were stolen.

The girl, Alice Ritchie, had not returned home nor had she been heard from hours after the mystery developed. Her father, James, 38, a welder, said his daughter never had stayed out all night before, except when employed as a baby sitter.

The mystery further deepened when the panel truck, involved in an accident at 2 a. m. at Murray Hill an Mayfield roads, was reported abandoned by a youth and two girls who fled on foot. In the truck was found a lace-edged black dress that had been worn by the missing baby sitter.

The truck and the pennies, along with a still-missing .38 caliber German automatic pistol, were taken from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred J. Budnick in Bratenahl. The family's two children, Alfred Jr., 10, and Susan, 2, slept peacefully through the excitement.

Roving Reports

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK

JUST 50 years ago a small girl pranged with doubt, sat down and wrote a letter to a newspaper that asked an immortal question—and received an immortal answer.

The girl was 8-year-old Virginia O'Hanlon. Her troubled question: "Please tell me the truth, is there a Santa Claus?"

Today little Virginia is a 58-year-old school principal who never since has questioned the reality of Santa Claus.

BOYLE

The newspaperman who answered her back in 1897 with an unsigned editorial published in the New York Sun was Francis P. Church, and his reply has become a part of American Christmas folklore.

"Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus. He exists as certainly as love and generosity and devotion exist, and you know that they abound and give to your life its greatest beauty and joy."

Church went on to point out that there is nothing real and lasting in the beauty of the unseen world whose passwords are fairy, fancy, poetry and romance, and concluded:

"No Santa Claus! Thank God he lives and he lives forever. A thousand years from now, Virginia, nay 10 times 10 thousand years from now, he will continue to make glad the heart of childhood."

CHURCH DIED a number of years ago and the little Virginia whose faith in Santa Claus he kept is now Mrs. Edward Douglas, a widow and principal of a public school in Manhattan's lower East side.

Curiously, the girl who asked the famous question and the man who gave the famous answer never met or saw each other.

"A friend of my family however, was a neighbor to Mr. Church and complained that he kept dogs that barked too much," she laughed. "That was all I knew of him."

A trim, pleasant-faced woman with gray hair and blue eyes, Mrs. Douglas recalled that at first she was mildly displeased by the original publication of her letter because schoolmates teased her.

"But the editorial that Mr. Church wrote means ever more to me now than then. As each year passes I see more in it."

Its philosophy has influenced her own life, and she still believes with a whole heart in the things for which Santa Claus stands.

"You don't want to isolate children in a world of make-believe," she said. "But with international conditions what they are, any small happiness that can be provided to counterbalance harsh realities is a fine thing. What is Santa Claus but the spirit of giving?"

And Mrs. Edward Douglas says she still believes in him just as much today as little Virginia O'Hanlon did half a century ago.

Americans use about 800,000,000 matches daily.

KEEPS HER FAITH IN SANTA CLAUS. Mrs. Edward Douglas, 58-year-old principal of Public School 31, New York City, who as Virginia O'Hanlon, 50 years ago wrote the New York Sun to "Please tell me the truth, is there a Santa Claus?" keeps her faith in answer she received by helping David Rosen, 6, pupil in her school, to write letter to Santa. A now famous editorial by the late Francis P. Church answered he. question and left her no doubts. (Associated Press Wirephoto)

POOR old Rome. Twenty years of Fascist Mussolini and now a battle rages for the soul of Communism with a prospect that Richard M. Scanlon, director of the American military government in Germany, as "Fascism with a coat of red paint."

However, the flag of the new Italian republic still flies gaily in challenge to revolutionary tactics, and with the collapse of the general strike in the capital the government is doing better than holding its own.

A thoroughly organized and powerful Communist party, drawing its inspiration and orders from Moscow, has been riding the economically stricken nation like the old man of the sea, but while it's too soon to make categorical predictions, things look brighter and there are good grounds for hope that Italy will pull through.

DewittMackenzie

Of one thing we may be dead sure: Red Russia never will abandon its effort to secure domination of the Italian peninsula so long as it has a foothold. The Muscovites mean business with this world revolution of theirs, as witness the explosion in the Big Four foreign ministers' conference in London yesterday.

Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov is said to have resumed his bitter lambasting of western democracy policies. The storm got so fierce that Secretary of State Marshall reportedly declared it very difficult to have any respect for the dignity of the Soviet "big eminent" and said Molotov's statement was made for "quite another purpose" than the problems of Germany and for "quite another audience" than the foreign ministers. And British Foreign Minister Bevin is quoted as characterizing Molotov's tirade as a whole series of insults and complete untruths and adding that the Russian might at least thank the other ministers for sitting through such a statement.

WELL, THAT REPRESENTS the harsh Bolshevist spirit behind the attack on Italian sovereignty. Moscow is particularly anxious to secure control of Italy for several reasons, among which are these:

1. It's essential for furtherance of the Soviet scheme to defeat the Marsnall plan or the rehabilitation of Western Europe.

2. It's vital to the success of the Red campaign to Sovietize Western Europe.

3. Italy, lying as it does on the Adriatic just across from the Yugoslavia, would form a powerful defense for this southern flank of Russia's present zone of influence in eastern Europe.

4. Last—but far from least—the peninsula would provide magnificent naval and military base through which Russia might achieve a burning ambition running back for generations in the time of the czars, and that to become a Mediterranean power. Indeed control of Italy might make Russia the dominant power in the whole Mediterranean and Middle Eastern area, thus completely altering the present distribution of influence among the great nations, especially Britain, France and America.

Italy is a prize for which Russia is bound to fight to a finish.

Penicillin Good Weapon Against Scarlet Fever

BECAUSE penicillin has been employed with great success in the treatment of many types of infection due to streptococci germs, it was to be expected that this wonder drug might give us our best weapon against scarlet fever, since it is known that scarlet fever is caused by streptococci.

Today, medical science has confirmed this expectation by comparative studies in which some patients were treated with penicillin and others with scarlet fever antitoxin. Penicillin is the winner on nearly every important count and most important of all, it seems to reduce the number of complications.

Findings in these tests support experience in our Municipal Contagious Disease Hospital in Chicago where penicillin has been widely used in the treatment of scarlet fever and found superior to both scarlet fever antitoxin and the sulfonamide drugs. Here, too, there were fewer complications when penicillin was used than when other forms of treatment were employed.

Scarlet fever itself is usually an uneventful disease unless complications develop, but these are so many, so varied and sometimes, so serious that they have been more feared than the original disease. They include such things as infection of the middle part of the ear and of the lymph glands in the neck; rheumatic fever; acute infection of the kidneys, or even meningitis, which is an infection of the membrane covering the brain and spinal cord.

Another important effect of penicillin is the quick elimination of the streptococci from the throat of the patient. It was found that, with the penicillin treatment, the streptococci passed from the throat after a period of about two days and in only a few instances did the organisms return. This effect is brought about whether the penicillin is given by injection or by mouth.

In most instances, following the giving of penicillin, there is a rapid drop in the temperature, even though some fever persists for an average of two days. It is interesting to note however, that it took twice as long to bring the temperature back to normal with the penicillin as it did with the antitoxin.

It was found also that if the patient had developed middle-ear infection or lymph gland infection was begun, these infections also were completely cleared up with penicillin.

To be effective, the penicillin treatment must be continued for at least five days. The penicillin may be given by injection into a muscle or may be taken by mouth. However, in the latter case, the dose employed must be about five times as great as when the preparation is given by injection.

Scarlet fever antitoxin has one disadvantage, which is the occurrence of a reaction following its use, known as serum sickness. However, patiently critically ill with scarlet fever probably should be treated with both the penicillin and the antitoxin. The milder cases of the disease may be treated with the penicillin alone.

GALION UAW HAS MAJORITY

Cross-check of Union Cards Compiled Under Terms of Strike Settlement.

Special to The Star

GALION, Dec 13—The United Auto Workers, CIO, had a majority of unit workers at the North Electric Manufacturing Co as of Aug 18, it was decided at the conclusion of the cross-check of union pledge cards against the company payroll when it was completed at 3:30 p. m Friday.

A written report of the results of the cross-check was submitted to both company and union officials by the arbiter, Verner E. Wardlaw of Columbus, of the United States Mediation and Conciliation Service It took seven days to complete the check which began Nov. 19, but was interrupted several times when the arbiter and two observers, the Very Rev. W J Spickerman, V F, pastor of St Mary Catholic church, Marion, (selected by the union) and Rev Norman J. Somerville, pastor of First Methodist church, Galion (chosen by the company) had conflicting schedules. The check was held Nov. 19, 20 and 21, continued Nov. 25, 26, Dec. 8, 11 and 12.

More Than Half

Figures released at the conclusion of the cross-check, Friday afternoon, showed that there were 510 eligible to be counted, and 413 of this number interviewed It would take 256 for a majority, and when 259 valid cards were reported for the union at 3:30 p. m., the cross-check was declared closed. In all of the 259 valid signers, there was no objection by either observer who was present with the arbiter at all interviews Selection of the arbiter early in November was made by the observers after they were chosen by the company and union.

Terms of an agreement signed between UAW-CIO and the North company on Nov 1, ending a 74-day strike, provided for the cross-check.

Representing the company Friday when results of the cross-check were given out by Arbiter Wardlaw were Harold Baldwin of the Labor Relations Institute of New York City; Harold Burns company attorney; and Alan Ryon, personnel director at the Galion plant. The UAW-CIO was represented by Thomas Kinney of Toledo, a regional representative who came to Galion recently to assist Edward J. Duck, international representative and organizer. Duck was not present when the cross-check was completed

Conference Dec. 18

Meanwhile, interest will be turned toward the conference next Thursday, Dec. 18, which will bring Field Examiner David C. Findlay of the NLRB to Galion to investigate the petition filed with the board by the Independent Workers Union which was formed Nov. 1 and has declared that it represents a majority of unit workers and wants an election to determine a bargaining agent

A company spokesman stated Friday, "We will respect any action that wins an election"

The agreement which was signed between UAW-CIO and North Electric Co on Nov 1 to end the 74-day strike which the CIO had called last Aug 20 in demand for recognition, provided for the cross-check, and negotiations between CIO and company if the union won the cross-check, but it stated that all negotiations would cease if and when any group of employes of the company file any petition with the National Labor Relations Board claiming majority representation of any alleged appropriate unit, the decision rendered by the NLRB to be final and binding upon all parties for a period of 12 months

New York Stock Quotations

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Dec. 13—Assorted stocks continued to show recovery leanings today although many leaders stumbled over light selling.

The fact that the list had not shown an average loss in six straight sessions inspired some caution among professionals who thought that the comeback may have served as a normal correction of the recent slide.

Dealings, active at the start, soon slackened and fractional irregularity was the rule near the final hour.

Pacific Western Oil, an erratic performer lately, opened up 4 points. Occasional advances of fractions were recorded for U. S. Steel Bethlehem Steel, Chrysler, Woolworth, Western Union, American Telephone, Du Pont, American Can, Westinghouse and Southern Railway. Most of the buoyant oils of Friday took a rest.

Intermittent losers included Santa Fe, Dow Cremical, General Electric, United Aircraft, Glenn Martin, Oliver Corp., International Harvester, General Motors, Goodrich, Electric Power and Light, Phelps Dodge and International Nickel.

CHAPTER NINE

Tom Gets the Red Wool

Tom Clover drifted [illegible] into the Land of Tomorrow and settled ever so gently on [illegible] grass in front of a [illegible] house made entirely of [illegible]

[illegible]haired boy ran out of [illegible]. "Hello!" he cried happily. "Are you come to play [illegible]

Tom thought he was the happiest [illegible] he had ever seen and [illegible] to have loved to stay and [illegible] but instead, he said, "I [illegible] to Nettyboo where the [illegible] grazes."

Then he told the boy who he [illegible] and how he had to get the [illegible] wool for Mr. Sleek so he [illegible] get a star to decorate his [illegible] tree.

The boy said, "Nettyboo is the [illegible] in the valley but the red [illegible] Oh, my goodness! The [illegible] are kept in a meadow guarded [illegible] bulls and the bulls are [illegible] by an evil witch. You [illegible] NEVER get the wool!"

"I must try anyway," said Tom [illegible] started away.

"Wait!" cried the boy. "My [illegible] Peter. Let me come with [illegible] please do—for I seldom [illegible] here!"

Tom smiled. "Come then," he [illegible] "For I do not even know the [illegible]

So Peter took Tom down the [illegible] mountain and into the valley [illegible] showed him where the meadow [illegible] It was a great field surrounded by a high fence and a herd of bulls. In the middle of the field a lonely sheep grazed [illegible] the sheep's wool blazed red [illegible] the noonday sun.

At the gate of the fence sat a horrendous creature with slits for eyes and two holes in her face for a nose. Her hair was like a red mop and her teeth like broken stones. Peter and Tom gasped with horror as they stood before her.

Finally Tom cleared his throat and said, "Please, mam, May we have the key to the gate so I can get a handful of wool?"

"I will give you wool!" growled the witch and she leaped up and began tugging at his hair to pull it out by the roots.

Then it was that Tom remembered his mother once told him: 'A woman loves nice words, Tom.'

"TAKE THE KEY, CHILDREN."

she had said, "No matter who she is."

"Old witch!" he cried, his head aching with pain. "You are a remarkable being! Your cheeks glow like red coals in a grate. Your eyes are like coffee and cream. Your hair glistens like boiled spaghetti and your voice soars like a peanut vender's."

The horrible witch let Tom go and stared at him in astonishment. "Is it really so?" she begged. Her voice quavered with hope.

"Really, really," said Tom. "You are the most entrancing witch I have ever seen."

The old creature fumbled in her pocket and brought out a key. "Never has anyone said such things to me," she faltered and the rusty tears were running down her cheeks. "I've been here 7,000 years and never before heard those things/a woman loves to hear. Take the key, children. And here are two feathers. Keep the feathers in your hats and the bulls will not trouble you."

Then she went off to find a mirror to admire herself.

PETER and Tom unlocked the gate and entered the meadow. Instantly the herd of bulls charged, snorting furiously, with horns lowered to kill.

The boys stook quaking. But when the bulls were almost upon them the angry animals saw the feathers and turned away.

"What magic!" cried Tom and he ran across the meadow with Peter at his side.

The red sheep gazed at them solemnly and moved not an inch while Tom snatched out his pocket knife and chopped off a fistful of crimson wool.

He stuck the wool in his pocket and turned and ran away. But, the curly haired Peter, at his heels, suddenly lost his footing and fell headlong in the grass.

Tom ran on. When he was nearly to the gate he stopped in amazement for every bull in the meadow was screaming with rage and charging past.

Then Tom turned and saw that Peter had lost his hat and, with it, the feather that would keep the bulls away!

Probing for a Weak Point

THE De Gasperi government in Italy is endeavoring to match France's record for curtailing Communist-inspired strikes and sabotage. For their part, the Communists, thwarted for the time being in France, are exerting new pressure in Italy. It is a standard Communist tactic to test the opposition's front for weak points.

Italy may prove more susceptible to the Communist virus than France. It has known totalitarianism, the devastation of war and humiliation of defeat. It is more of a have-not nation than France. Its Communist leadership is centered in the formidable Togliatti and not, as in France, shared by a band of theorists and intellectuals.

Nevertheless, the Communists have been losing ground in Italy since last spring. Living costs have been reduced to the extent that Communist appeals had begun to shift from the laborer to the poor merchant who wasn't getting enough for his goods. To regain lost ground, they have decided to resort to direct action as a test of power.

If the Reds lose this bid western Europe will be saved from the Communist threat for the present. Interim aid from the United States will help tide it over. But only economic regeneration will save it from recurrent strife and eventual Communist domination.

Diplomatic Filibuster

THE suspicion grows that Molotov is conducting a diplomatic filibuster in London. He makes long speeches. He pleads. He accuses. He makes concessions "in principle," but when the other conferees endeavor to get down to cases, he will not be pinned down. No one wishes to assume responsibility for adjourning the conference, so the talks continue, with no indication anything of importance is being settled.

Growing impatient the other day, Secretary Marshall said, "We are wasting time when there is no time to waste." German development of the Ruhr as part of the Marshall plan is being delayed pending the outcome of the talks. Molotov knows that as long as there is a faint hope of settlement, the economic unification of western Germany will be put off.

If there are any tangible results forthcoming from the London conference, they will mark a major change in Russian world policy. Meanwhile, Marshall, Bidault and Bevin must listen to Molotov's exterporizing, for they know Russia will have a powerful talking point in Germany if they move to adjourn the conference. Eventually they will make that move when they are convinced it is futile to continue.

Fraud in Wartime

THE Bennett Meyers disclosures in Washington have brought an admission from the Army that in wartime there's no system that will fully rule out the possibility of fraud. The vast numbers of contractors and the maze of sub-contractors make it impossible for auditors to check all possible loopholes when production is on a war basis. For instance, one contractor was found to be the sub-contractor for his own work "at the 16th level." Fifteen sub-contractors brought back the work he originally had signed for.

Granted that it's impossible to legislate honesty and that the whole story of World War II speculations may never be told, there is good reason to believe that the loophole for crooked dealing grows smaller with each passing year.

The sharpies who grew fat leeching the Continental army and the peddlers of inferior equipment in the Civil War were so numerous their activities were common scandal. In World War II we have had only two outstanding examples of lapses from rectitude—that of Meyers and the May-Garsson case. Controls, plus the scorn, are an increasing deterrment to illegal acts by men in posts of responsibility, but they will never be 100 per cent effective, human nature being what it is.

Thickets in the City

THIS is the season when pine woods materialize on vacant lots and outside filling stations and grocery stores. The Christmas tree crop is up for sale, the prospective buyer walks the piney aisles and inhales deeply of north woods perfume.

The proprietor keeps a close check on his inventory, for his stock is highly seasonal. The market becomes excessively bearish late on the afternoon of Dec. 14 and on Dec. 26 an unsold Christmas tree is a 100 per cent loss.

In recent years, preference has shifted from spruce and balsam to long-needle Scotch and Austrian pine, which, while not so aromatic, are favored because they don't litter carpets with needles before New Year's Eve.

But whatever variety he purchases, the buyer shouldn't let his enthusiasm for a lofty, symmetrical tree blot out his mind's eye view of his parlor's modest dimensions, an oversize tree makes for a bad situation all around: the lady of the house is irate and the purchaser's ego, as well as the tree, must be pruned.

There are now six recognized varieties of turkeys in the United States: Bronze, Narragansett, White Holland, Bourbon Red, Black and Slate.

Scanning the Record

The Great Career of Nicholas Murray Butler.

COLUMBIA university probably reached its apogee as an institution of learning during the years just before World War I. Nicholas Murray Butler, together with John Dewey, launched Teachers' college, which is the most decisive factor in education in the United States. He lived long enough, 85 years, to be able to judge the consequences of the secularization of education and the emphasis of functional rather than humanistic training.

SOKOLSKY

Nicholas Murray Butler was himself a curious combination of the scholar and practical man, more so perhaps than Eliot of Harvard or Hadley of Yale. He built an institution of learning that touched life at every point, that could have the best of Chinese and Indo-Iranian scholarship and also practical schools of journalism and dentistry. At about the time of World War I, Columbia housed a galaxy of learned men unequaled in America. Dewey in philosophy, Robinson in history, Beard in government, Thorndike in psychology, Seligman in economics, Shotwell, Hayes and Muzzey in history, John Bassett Moore in international law, Hirth in Chinese, Jackson in Indo-Iranian languages, Pupin in physics, Boas in anthropology, and on and on.

A Great Era

It was a wonderful time to be at Columbia. There was enthusiasm for scholarship, close contact with brilliant men, sharp interchange of ideas. And the spirit of the place, taking its tone from Butler, was broadly liberal in the sense that the educated man meets life in all its craracteristics, and forms his own conclusions as a personal choice.

World War I created a paradox. Nicholas Murray Butler had done more than any man in America to stir an interest in world peace. The Carnegie Foundation and Butler's own international conciliation propagandized for peace, for understanding and for world order. Butler had studied in Germany, had been honored by German universities. Many of the Columbia professors were opposed to the war; they could not heap the abuse on Germany that was characteristic of that war. They could not hate their colleagues who were of German origin.

Large numbers of students were inclined to oppose war. Columbia was the center of the Collegiate Anti-militarism league which developed quite a following in American universities. Butler's problem was no longer one in the realm of abstract philosophy; when war came, he was faced by patriotism or consistency. He chose the former and a number of professors left the university. It was the first suppression of freedom of thought and action by Butler—and so far as I know the only one in his career.

Preferred Freedom

Nicholas Murray Butler could have managed Columbia in his image, as it were. But he did not. He could have chosen men who reflected his views and his attitudes. But he chose the course of freedom. Often he was held accountable, by those who did not understand, for what appeared to be a confusion of ideas that came out of the schools on Morningside, but actually Butler, except in war, never interfered with his faculties. They pursued their searches in an atmosphere of freedom.

It is unfortunate that Columbia university has become so big. That, of course, is the misfortune of every American institution of learning these days. They grow bigger but not better, for bigness often interferes with the capacity to inspire, to stir the imagination of youth, to quarrel over ideas, to fight it out, as we used to do, in classroom. Actually most schools have too many students.

Nicholas Murray Butler lived so long that he was a witness to the beginnings of higher education in America and also a witness to its great influence upon American life. He saw the shift from Latin and Greek to business administration and household arts. He also saw the changes implied in learning between the time when a university was headed by a man of profound scholarship and today when the administrator is moving in—the man who may not know the difference between epistemology and eschatology but who does know the cost of laying bricks and the proper method of washing windows without wasting soap.

Butler was a scholar and Columbia stands a monument to his broad liberalism which gave America institutions of learning that could and did hold their own with the best in Europe.

The Prodigal Returns To Flatbush

Leo Durocher has been reinstated as manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

A tree grows in Brooklyn and they hanged Burt Shotton from it.

Shotton? Shotton is the Cinderella Man of baseball. He took over when Commissioner Chandler waved Durocher to the showers for a year for conduct detrimental to baseball, an action over which Durocher partisans are still indignant. After all, they say The Lip was only acting naturally.

At any rate, Burt Shotton, whom the glass slipper fit when Branch Rickey was looking about for someone to fill Durocher's shoes last spring, has now been given the boot. He gave the Dodgers their first pennant in six years and Rickey's ingratitude knows no bounds.

The Threat of Oil Rationing

By Raymond Moley

IF THERE is any argument for oil rationing in this country, it certainly cannot rest on the needs of the Marshall plan. The facts in the oil situation, as reliably compiled by the American Petroleum Institute, clearly show how insignificant foreign shipments are likely to be, even under the figures recommended by the administration.

Exports and imports of oil have a tendency to run almost in balance. In 1941, we imported 97,142,000 barrels and exported 108,830,000 barrels. The estimated imports for 1947 will be 165,300,000 barrels and the exports, 150,200,000. Thus, the supply from abroad is able to balance the needs for shipping oil abroad. Moreover, the amount needed for export is only about seven per cent of the total demand upon American production.

MOLEY

Nor can military demands justify a demand for rationing. Before the war, our military needs were about 12,000,000 barrels a year. Now they are over 90,000,000. But even this greatly increased amount is less than two per cent of the total use of oil in the United States.

Increase It At Home

The oil pinch, if there is to be one, will be caused by increased use of oil and oil products in the domestic market. There, the demand has greatly increased.

Motor-vehicle usage has greatly increased in six years. Buses and trucks are more numerous by about 30 per cent; passenger cars, by three per cent.

Farm prosperity has greatly increased the use of oil products. In the Mid-West, farmers are using twice the oil and gasoline that they used before the war.

Diesel engines are multiplying. The increase in demand for fuel-ing them is 182 per cent of 1941.

There is a tremendous increase in the use of oil for heating homes, stores and factories. Liquefied petroleum gas, or "bottled" gas, is also in much greater demand.

In civil aviation, there is need for much more gasoline and oil.

Coal problems have caused manufacturing companies to turn to oil. Industrial use is up 19 per cent over 1946.

Chemical Industry Uses

Finally, in the chemical industry new uses of oil are appearing every day—in making synthetic rubber, insecticides, weed destroyers, medicines and cosmetics.

So far, the oil industry has been meeting these greatly increased demands. Supply is running a little in advance of demand. The prospects for this winter are not especially dark. There is enough refining capacity in existence or under way to meet expected increases. And there is in prospect a sufficient supply of basic petroleum.

The most serious problem is transportation, for in this industry, as in almost every other aspect of contemporary life, the body is outgrowing the jacket. And the materials, such as steel, which go into tank cars, pipe lines and other means of handling oil are hard to get.

There will be shortages here and there which can probably naturally adjust themselves without great hardships. And, considering the fact that a relatively small number of great refining companies are involved voluntary adjustments can be made through the mediation of a reasonable government. Government can help, too, in publicizing the methods through which the public can help in conservation.

But the regulators are, as always, in full cry. They want bureaucratic rationing, which would take months to prepare and which would be wholly unnecessary before it got under way. Meanwhile, all threats of rationing will lead to hoarding, which might intensify the very danger which everybody wants to avoid.

Naval Reserve

As of Oct. 1 the naval reserve had 867,841 members, an increase of 11,153 over the preceding month's total, the Navy department reports.

Naval reserve personnel strength the announcement said, has reached 74 per cent of requirements, with several reserve divisions having substantial waiting lists of applicants. Of the total organized reservists, there were 17,270 officers and 138,453 enlisted personnel as of Oct. 1, while voluntary inactive and other elements of the naval reserve totaled 160,538 officers and 456,580 enlisted personnel.

Three hundred twelve buildings and ship armories are being utilized by reserve units in 300 cities.

Of 175 Quonset-type training centers now planned, contracts on 108 have been awarded, and work is under way on about 65 per cent of the contracts to alter existing buildings for naval reserve purposes.

The Big Four Fog-Bowl Game in London

From News of Other Years

TEN YEARS AGO

It was Monday, Dec. 13, 1937.

Hirosi Saito, Japanese ambassador, called on Secretary Hull to express his government's profound apologies over the sinking of the Panay the previous day. "Of course," he told newsmen in an interview, "it was purely accidental. We would have had no reason to attack an American naval ship."

A burlap-hooded bandit, previously reported active in at least nine north-central Ohio cities, held up and robbed service stations in Marion and Upper Sandusky and escaped with $23.05.

Morrow county tossed its debt problems overboard and gave other counties in the state something to shoot at in the way of clean financial slates. County Auditor Marold Taylor finished paying off an accumulation of obligations, most of them operating deficits, and announced the county was free from debt excepting for a few special assessment road bonds which would be paid off by 1941.

Harry F. Margwarth was re-elected chairman of the Marion County Red Cross chapter at the annual meeting of the members.

Members of the Advance club were guests of Mrs. E. N. Hale of East Church street at a Christmas party. An original play, "Five Minutes to Twelve," written for the occasion by Mrs. J. B. Bray and directed by Mrs. Karl W. Schell, was presented by Mrs. D. T. Mills, Mrs. Alvin C. Bipnus, Mrs. Schell, Mrs. Bray and Mrs. Louis Michel.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

It was Tuesday, Dec. 13, 1927.

Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Gelbaugh celebrated their golden wedding anniversary with a family dinner at their home on South Prospect street.

Col. Lindbergh, who had made his trans-Atlantic flight to Paris in May, took off in his famous ship, "Spirit of St. Louis," from Bolling Field in Washington on what was planned to be a non-stop flight to Mexico.

The section west of Marion in the vicinity of Leader street was flooded the second time in two weeks following a heavy rainstorm.

Mrs. Scott Gast of 203 Pearl street was in Cleveland visiting her daughter, Miss Margaret Helen Gast, student in the school of nursing at Western Reserve university.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Kellogg of Windsor street went to Lakeland, Fla., to spend the winter.

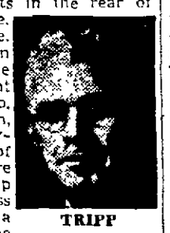
Mrs. Samuel Rosenberg was hostess to the Woman's Century club at her home on Hane avenue.

The Arctic League

By Frank Tripp

IN my home town we have what we call the Arctic League. For 33 years it has been Santa Claus to children who would fare badly without it. It is the grandest Christmas idea that could be; a blessing to all who support it.

Maybe you have something like it; I hope so. It started with a group of baseball fans who replayed the last season's games of Winter nights in the rear of a cigar store. Hence the name.



TRIPP

It was born like this: One bitter cold night 33 years ago, Danny Sullivan, a young surveyor who was of the cigar store gang, met up with a homeless outcast along a trolley line he was surveying.

The boy was a pitiful sight, with thin, torn clothes, no overcoat or gloves, and shoes worn through to stockingless feet. He was penniless, hungry, cold and sick. Danny didn't just spare him a dime; he took him to the little cigar store, where warmth for body and for soul still to this day abound.

The sitters there were lean of purse but they had hearts of gold. I've seen them grow to men and carry on, many to their grave, the work they started that cold night. Some gained wealth, many success; all were blest.

They dubbed the outcast "Friday," for it was that day that he arrived. They clothed and fed him; gave him a home, a doctor's and dentist's care and when he was about, they found him a job. Friday grew up in our midst and became a useful citizen.

Friday came into the lives of his saviours near Christmas time. He did more for them than they did for him. The next Christmas the cigar store lads went out to look for a few youngsters who might be forgotten; bought them candy, toys and clothes. Next year they took on more—and then each year some more.

The town caught on to what the boys of little means were doing and folks began to chip in. Pretty soon the Arctic League children's fund was up in the hundreds of dollars—finally up in the many thousands.

It became a privilege to contribute to their work, because it was unique. They sought the children of neglectful parents, drunkards, wasters; the waifs who peer in Christmas windows at dolls and toys that are not for them. The little cold hands that some day would pick a pocket. The little wet feet that some day would flee from the society they could come to hate. To these they gave a Christmas.

Then they looked hard, and found plenty of proud and worthy fathers who hid their want from the cold and exacting processes of organized charity. Would starve and even deprive their children rather than ask aid. Oh, there are lots of them.

Always everything the Arctic League has done has been just for children. The job grew and grew, finally so big it had to be incorporated. One of the city's biggest men, one of its wealthiest became the corporation's first president.

Others as prominent and big have since alternated in the coveted post with humble, loyal Leaguers from the ranks. The Arctic League belongs to everybody in Elmira now—and everybody loves it. Everybody who gives is a member, whether it's a dime or a hundred.

It all is voluntary. Folks still walk into the little cigar store before Christmas, into the same place Friday came 33 years ago, and put their name in a big book and their gift on the showcase.

The same family runs the cigar store. The bootblack who ran it when Friday came now owns a big wholesale business and rates somewhere one to five when the town lines up its worthwhile citizens.

Today the Arctic League's Santa Claus goes to nearly 3,000 kiddies and takes them toys, dolls, candy, nuts, goodies, shoes, rubbers and warm clothes. He arrives early Christmas morning, magic like. He takes them to a movie, too. Then he watches over them throughout the year, should unusual misfortune come their way.

God bless America, the place where such things come to pass. Thanks to God for Christmas, which puts such deeds in the hearts of men. And moves them closer to the nobleness of life; stirs in them compassion for a helpless, hopeless, neglected child; leads them to the homes of parents harassed by sickness and misfortune; homes where little hearts yearn for the Christmas joy and plenty that is all about them, still so beyond their reach.

Somewhere around you is somethink like the Arctic League. Go find it. And feel the joy of waking Christmas morning to know that a child is happy, who would have been heartbroken but for you.

Red Cross Resumed

STOCKHOLM — After negotiations with various authorities, the Swedish Red Cross is now rendering assistance to the so-called "exodus" Jews, who are interred in camps near Luebeck, on Germany's northern coast. The aid is mostly in the form of medicine and clothes. The Swedish Red Cross also has resumed its feeding of children in Germany, which was temporarily halted during the summer.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

Letters for Special Delivery

MR ERIC JOHNSTON,
Czar of the Movies.

DEAR ERIC: Well, you are just looking for laughs, I guess, and it is okay, as I like more comedy in the movie world, and you are now eligible for a meter-splitting performance of "Can You Top This?" as a result of that recent announcement of a revolutionary change in picture policy whereby no film based on the life of a criminal will be permitted unless the character is shown punished for the crimes committed." (You win, Eric, and Harry Hirshfield and Joe Laurie Jr. only pushed the laugh meter to 950.)

I have not had a giggle in years like when I read your statement. Gosh Eric, you certainly have control of the facial muscles all right, all right. "Unless the character is shown punished for the crimes committed"!!! Why, Mister Hollywood, you have the kiddies splitting their sides, too.

You might just as well have said "There will be no change whatever in the presentation of crime pictures," on account of the oldest gag in pictures and radio is to have the big plug-ugly get a little chastisement just before the picture fades out into Donald Duck or Mickey Mouse.

Show me any crime picture in the history of the pictures or of radio in which the big bad, machine gun and brass knuckle man, after a blood-curdling life of lawlessness for an hour and forty minutes, hasn't been sent up the river or been plugged in a phone booth just to please the Mothers Clubs, at the extreme end of the film. Of course, now and then there is a little improvement. I once saw a crime glorification in which the top desperado had nothing worse happen to him than losing the nomination for the presidency. But that was when the presidency seemed attractive.

Eric, the kids have been yawning at this last-minute retribution treatment for years. They know in advance that the throat-cutting, porch-climbing convict and all around no-good will do his stuff all over the screen to the Hollywood cry of "Pour it on until it's time for the fade-out" defying all the criminal laws, the rules of human behavior, the Ten Commandments and the teachings of popper and mommer. They just ignore that interlude where he climbs into the wagon with a "See ya next week in the super special 'Meatax Mulligan'."

Oh, well, what would life be without a little comedy, and you are entitled to your fun like anybody else. Only I wish you would not keep such a straight face as it does not help put the laughs over.

Yours as ever,
ELMER.

P. S.—The radio folks used the same gag two months ago. They have a sensayuma, too, eh?

The Duke of Windsor is now writing his life story for a magazine. Nobody seems able to take a pen or leave it alone any more.

CAN YOU REMEMBER—

Away back when you were belittling a man when you said he had laid an egg?

The whopping success of "A Streetcar Named Desire" has many a Broadway producer envious. We heard of one who pointed to another one the other day and said scornfully "And all his life he's been waiting for a trolley!"

Russian Philosophy

Sticks and stones will break my bones,
But fear of them is whammy
As long as I'm shipped all the stuff
I want from Uncle Sammy.

Then how do so many pictures turn out that way, huh?

All Over the Map

By Jane Eads

National Geographic Society maps, distributed to members in editions of National Geographic Magazine, have come to be a standard source of reference in schools and libraries. Since publishing its first map, the society has distributed 89,976,872 copies of 101 large full-color maps. As of last April, the number of copies of each map had grown to 1,600,000.

During the seven years encompassing the war the society supplied members and the armed services with more than 37,400,000 large 10-color maps.

The War Department, during the war, used more than 1,000,000 National Geographic maps. One order alone called for 80,000 copies of the China map issued in June, 1945. The Navy also used the maps. One of its early orders was for several hundred copies of the map of the Pacific ocean, to be sent ships in that area, right after Pearl Harbor.

The society boasts that its maps are "clear, concise and comprehensive, containing a wealth of information" and points to the 1946 map of the United States as an example. It bears 10,750 place names. In addition to this new one-sheet map of this country, the society has just issued the fourth in its series of U.S. regional maps. On these maps virtually all of the sizeable towns appear.

Albert H. Bumstead, the first chief cartographer, devised a method of photo-printing for all map lettering. Place names, for instance, under this device can be produced in any size and can be printed in curves instead of straight lines.

From the first the making of a map required more than a score of cartographers, draftsmen, research workers and checkers. Making the mountains on one typical map, for instance, required three months of work.

Town "Discovers" Famed Mother

By The Associated Press

WILMINGTON, N. C.—One hundred and forty-four years after her birth in this North Carolina seaport town they'll finally get around to hanging in a public building a reproduction of Whistler's Mother, one of the world's most famous paintings.

The city has commissioned a Massachusetts artist, Harry Sutton Jr., of North Andover, to reproduce James McNeill Whistler's painting of his mother, Anna Mathilda McNeill Whistler.

Actually, Sutton's oil, which will be hung in the Wilmington city hall in January, will be a reproduction of a reproduction. The original is in the Louvre in Paris. Sutton will copy a reproduction that hangs in Lowell, Mass., the work of the subject's great niece, Edith Fairfax Deport.

Whistler's mother was born a McNeill, daughter of a doctor who came to Wilmington from Edinburgh, Scotland. She is buried in Hastings, England.

Christmas Is the Peak

A Sermonette

By REV. ELDRED JOHNSTON

Pastor of Central Christian Church.

TO some people the peak of the the CHristian year is Easter; to some it's Pentecost; to some it's Good Friday: but to my mind, Christmas is the peak.

However, the exploitation of this season by commercial interests has effectively befogged the religious significance of Christmas. Frantic shopping for gifts, the jinging of bells, and the sentimental folk-lore of the holiday season (which I enjoy)—all these have made us forget that this is fundamentally a religious occasion. No season of the year is ushered in with such a high-pressure commercial buildup. No sooner has the sound of the last firecracker died away on the Fourth than some aggressive huckster urges everyone to rush downtown and do your Christmas shopping before the rush begins.

The Christmas season has also become bogged down with revelry of all types: family reunions (which I love), dances, parties, dinners. All these are held to celebrate (Who asks, "Celebrate what?") That much of the celebration has little to do with the original significance of the day can be seen by the fact that liquor sales are at their peak this time of the year. One Christmas I happened to drop in to visit a friend of mine. He had company and when I entered I noticed that everyone had a glass of liquor. I appreciated the fact that there was no hypocritical rush to hide the glasses when I appeared. The thing that impressed me was that my friend invited me to join them in drinking. "—because," he explained, "it's Christmas." His tone acknowledged the fact that I was not a drinker, but he seemed to have a queer idea that because of the spirit of the season I should let the bars down.

Here, certainly, is a sign of the increasing paganization of this holy day. You probably wont get the point unless you realize that my friend has no interest in the church. Christmas, for him and many others, has become a celebration without a purpose!

Again, it's hard for me to understand why so many so-called Christians make no effort to attend a church service on Christmas Eve or Christmas day. Santa Claus is all right in his place, but should Chrstians spend Christmas Eve on their knees before the fireplace in supplication to Saint Claus instead of on their knees worshipping the divine Redeemer? On this night of all nights, they should be praising and glorifying God for His wonderful Gift to mankind!

We make much of the term "Gospel." Here, we say, is the key, the basis, the foundation of our religion. Well, that is exactly the point to Christmas. It is in Christmas that we supremely find the Gospel. For here in the birth of the Saviour is the first heralding of the Gospel—the good news. Angels sang—stars stopped in their courses—shepherds and kings bowed in adoration. Why? "Behold, I bring you good news; for unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour."

I'd like to say a word especially to those who have drifted far from the church: Christmas is a God-given opportunity for you to awaken—to come out of the darkness to renew your soul—to once more open your heart to the Light and the Truth and the Life which God, your Father, is sending into the world. May this Christmas be the glorious, joyful day of your life in which you allow the Christ to be reborn in your heart.

SPRINGFIELD, O., Dec. 13—Present feed prices and unfavorable feed ratio will cause a milk production decline next year, Dr. Earl Weaver, head of the Michigan State university dairy department, predicted yesterday in a speech to the Ohio dairyman's two-day conference.

Dr. Weaver foresaw an expansion of the dairy industry during the next five years, provided prices level off.

Conference officers reelected yesterday:

Dr. E. E. Rakestraw of Findlay, president; Emerson Mizer of Cadiz, vice president; Prof. S. M. Salisbury, Ohio State university college of agriculture, secretary-treasurer.

Directors: H. D. Andreas of Beach City; E. K. Berg of Novelty; Carlton Christian of Columbus, Homer Gall of Athens; Harry Kuns of Castalia; S. N. McIntosh of Burton; and R. R. Starbuck of Columbus.

New directors elected include Paul Dirkson of Kenton, Lester Hall of Tiffin and Arthur Burns of Milford Center.

Young To Fight Ban On N.Y.C. Board Seat

By The United Press

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13—Robert R. Young said today he will carry his fight for a directorship in the New York Central railroad to the courts and even to congress.

An interstate commerce commission examiner recommended earlier this week denial of the applications of Robert J. Bowman and Young to sit on the Central board while retaining their posts in the Chesapeake and Ohio railway. Young is chairman of the C. and O. board and Bowman is president.

At a press conference aboard a special train bringing him here from Texas, Young criticized the report.

Ceremony Unites F. Riley Hall And Sunbury, Pa., Girl

ANNOUNCEMENT is being made here of the wedding of Miss Geraldine A. Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Jones of Sunbury, Pa. and Frank Riley Hall, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Hall of 1025 East Center street, which took place Friday afternoon, Nov. 28, in Grace Lutheran church at Mount Carmel, Pa. The custom of open church was observed for the ceremony read at 2:30 o'clock by Rev. Park L. Wagenbach, pastor.

Decorations in the church were white and yellow chrysanthemums and the wedding music was by Mrs. Dorothy Boyer, organist and Miss Jean Strausser, vocalist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white satin and embroidered chiffon which she brought from Japan. The bodice, fashioned of the chiffon, had a round neckline, long sleeves tapering at the wrist and was trimmed with tiny buttons in the back. The skirt of satin extended into a long train. Her fingertip veil fell from a coronet of lace trimmed with an embroidery of the chiffon. Her flowers were an arm bouquet of white chrysanthemums and pompons and she wore a single strand of rhinestones, a gift from the bridegroom.

Mrs. E. Jeanette Newbrander of Cleveland, with whom the bride served as a flight nurse during World War II, was the matron of honor. Her gown, worn at her own wedding on Nov. 22, this year, in Cleveland, was egg shell satin and embroidered chiffon, and was fashioned with a sweetheart neckline, short sleeves and full skirt. She wore matching gauntlets and carried an arm bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums and pompons, and her headdress was a wreath of orange blossoms.

Miss Dorothy Zieger, of Mt. Carmel, cousin of the bride, Mrs. William Hanford of Williamsport, Pa. and Miss Janet Jones of Sunbury, sisters of the bride, were the other attendants. Miss Zieger wore a gown of yellow moire styled with a round neckline and short sleeves and matching gauntlets. Her headdress was a wreath of orange blossoms and her bouquet held yellow chrysanthemums and pompons. Her sisters wore off-the-shoulder gowns of tea rose and turquoise taffeta respectively. Their Juliet caps matched the color of their gowns and their bouquets were yellow chrysanthemums and pompons.

Wayne E. Hall of Charleston, W. Va., brother of the bridegroom, was the best man and ushers were J. Warren Hall of Marion, another brother, George Wehry of Mount Carmel and Virgil Newbrander of Cleveland.

The bride's mother wore a violet crepe gown with black and rose accessories and a corsage of pink roses. Mrs. Hall, mother of the bridegroom, wore a black crepe dress with matching accessories. Her flowers were a corsage of yellow roses.

An orchestra provided a background of music during the reception for 175 guests in the social rooms of the church. The bride's table was centered with a tiered wedding cake decorated with a miniature bride and bridegroom and encircled with gold and white chrysanthemums and pompons.

The couple will make their home in Ada, where the bridegroom is enrolled in the college of law at Ohio Northern university.

For her wedding trip the bride wore a navy blue costume with highland plaid accessories and a corsage from her wedding bouquet.

The bride was graduated from the Mount Carmel High school, attended Susquehanna university and was graduated from the Temple hospital school of nursing in Philadelphia. During World War II she served as a flight nurse in the Pacific area with the rank of first lieutenant. Until recently she was engaged in surgical nursing at the Marion City hospital here.

The bridegroom formerly was on the advertising staff of The Marion Star. During his three and one-half years of service in World War II he was in the European theater and held the rank of staff sergeant. He attended Muskingum college at New Concord, O.

Out-of-town guests included Mrs. Wayne Hall and children, Wayne and Beverly Ann, and Mr. and Mrs. John Hall of Marion.

The bride's parents are former residents of Mount Carmel. Her father is treasurer-elect of Northumberland county, Pa.

The rehearsal party was held Thanksgiving night at the home of Miss Jones' uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Zieger in Mount Carmel. At this time the bride presented her attendants with silver lavaliers set with stones matching their gowns, and gave the soloist and organist matching pins and earrings. Mr. Hall presented the best man and ushers with gold key chains.

DELAWARE PANEL DISCUSSION ENDS

By The Associated Press

DELAWARE, O., Dec. 13—Americans have just the kind of government they deserve, a former mayor of Baltimore, Md., asserted in a panel discussion which closed a one-day public affairs conference at Ohio Wesleyan university yesterday.

Hitting public apathy toward politics, former Mayor Theodore R. McKeldin said:

"We have the kind of government we deserve. We are not victims of circumstances."

Other panel participants were William H. Hessler, foreign editor of the Cincinnati Enquirer; Guy C. Larcom of the Cleveland Citizens' League, and A. E. Emerson of the Middletown Citizens' Committee. Hessler presided over the panel.

Discussion topic was "techniques of organizing effective citizens' action in civic or occupational groups," part of the general conference theme of the "citizens' part in public affairs."

Panel speakers proved particularly interested in boosting the general level of political intelligence and ethics, and the drafting "higher caliber" persons for political candidates.

They emphasized that individuals could express their views and get them before national legislators.

Rev. Wilbur Budke, pastor of Trinity and St. Paul Rural Lutheran churches, was guest speaker when members of the Wednesday noon Bible class met at the Y. M. C. A.

For his theme, he chose "What's Wrong?" Elaborating on this subject, he asked the questions, "What's wrong with the church, what's wrong with me as a Christian?" Continuing with his explanation, he stated in part that many of us are still problem children and fail to heed the call when given by Him.

Carl Campbell presided for the business session and introduced the guest speaker. A series of Christmas slides will be shown by Dr. F. A. Stengel at the next meeting.

YOUR HOME TODAY and TOMORROW

by W. Wadsworth Wood

...erage homeowner regards ...bing system as something ...far beyond his ability to ... In reality it is a very ...affair. There is a supply ...which conveys water to ...ns fixtures, and a drain-...tem which conveys the ...er from the fixtures and ...e house. When you have ...e control of the supply, ...clean and unobstructed ...e system, you have a per-...bination.

The first essential knowledge ...ner needs, is the location ...main supply control valve. ...are unable to locate it, you ...have some one show you ...it is and how to shut it off. ...this is known, sudden leaks ...pipes will hold no terrors for you. This valve must be shut when you are changing washers on a faucet.

Changing washers is a five-minute job. You can buy a box of assorted sizes in any hardware store, and the directions for doing the work are shown on the box in some instances.

Every house should be equipped with a rubber plunger for removing stoppages in basins and sinks. These exert tremendous pressure, and usually clear out any but the most stubborn obstructions. If the plunger does not bring results, the plug at the bottom of the trap should be removed, and a wire with a hook bent on the end, should be inserted to drag out the cause of the trouble.

The flush tanks of closets are far more simple than they look. You will find that the lid of the tank is removable. Take it off and operate the lever a few times while the water is turned off. You will be surprised at the simplicity of the mechanism. The chief trouble with flush tanks, is that the rubber ball which closes the opening into the bowl does not set properly in place. Often, through age or constant use, these lose the perfect round shape and have to be replaced. You can buy a new one for 35 cents, and will have no difficulty in unscrewing the old one and replacing it with another. It is not necessary to take any of the mechanism of the tank apart to make this repair.

FIRST AID TO AILING HOUSE

—By ROGER C. WHITMAN—

Steel Sash

Q. I am planning to build a new home soon and have been considering steel windows. Some of my friends have advised me against them, saying that the windows would "sweat" too much. The house we own now has wood frame windows, and they also sweat in cool weather. Will you please give me your unbiased opinion as to which would be best: steel or wood sash?

A. If the air of the house is very much over-charged with moisture, either type of sash will sweat, if not protected by storm sash during the cold months. Well-fitting metal weatherstrips also would be advisable. Cold outside air should not be allowed to come in contact with the inside windows, and care should be taken to close all cracks and crevices around the outside window frames with caulking-compound, forced in with a caulking-gun.

Furniture Needs Deodorizing

J. Can you suggest any method to deodorize a davenport and chair? They have acquired an unpleasant stale odor. The furniture is about 40 years old, and recently has been re-covered. I have tried airing it in the sun twice, tried the vacuum cleaner and a commercial deodorizing preparation, but the odor still remains.

A. A new-style, mildew-proofing preparation shoud do the trick for you. This product destroys mildew and also removes odors. Ask for it at a drug or chain store, or at a hardware or paint store. Another method you could try would be to sprinkle moth crystals liberally on the furniture, and then cover it up well so that the heavy fumes will not escape. Do the work in a room that can be closed for a day, for the smell is very strong. Chemical name: Paradichlorobenzene.) On airing the room well and removing the crystals, the odor of the chemical as well as the stale odor should disappear.

Spots on Table

Q. How can spots caused by a plastic purse be removed from a mahogany table?

A. Try wiping the surface with turpentine or benzine, being very careful of fire; then apply a thin coat of paste wax. Let dry hard and then polish. The spot may be permanent if the above will not take it out.

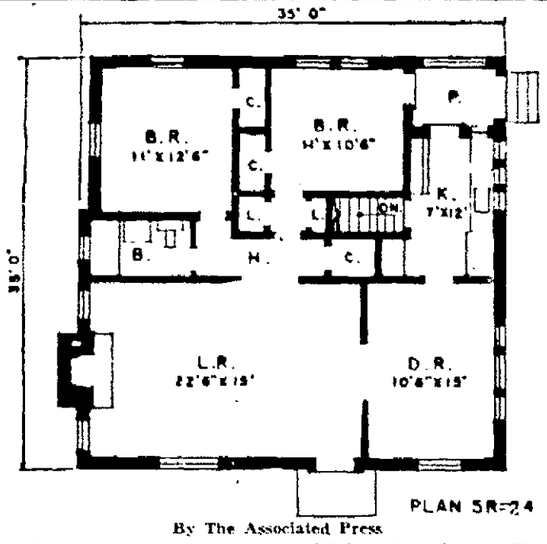
HOMES FOR AMERICANS



By The Associated Press

An English cottage gets "a new look" in this design by Elmer Gylleck, 120½ S. Grove Ave., Elgin, Ill. Calling for brick veneer construction with half-timber decoration, the house can be painted white with timbering and blinds stained brown. With a full basement the house has 25,000 cubic feet. It has a large attic which the architect says could be converted into a bedroom with dormer window to the rear and an open stairway between living room and dining room. The square layout is economical.

Session Postponed Today After Bitter Flare-up at Friday Meeting in London.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Dec. 13—The foreign ministers' session scheduled for today was postponed until Monday on British initiative, in order to allow tempers to cool after last night's violent argument.

The postponement was announced by the conference secretariat.

A member of the U. S. delegation said it was agreed that another session today would only result in quick tempers and confusion. The two-day recess will give the ministers time to plan a course of action.

Authoritative sources said the American delegation agreed the conference was "hopelessly deadlocked" on the subject of reparations and that without agreement on reparations, discussion of economic and other subjects was useless.

Secretary Marshall is expected to decide over the weekend whether to try to break off the conference immediately or go through the function of finishing the agenda before doing it. Part of the decision will depend on the attitude of Foreign Minister Molotov of Russia at the opening of the Monday meeting. Molotov was understood to be willing that the sessions continue. A Soviet spokesman said the future of the parley would depend on Marshall.

See All Hope Killed

Some of Marshall's advisors said privately they believed Molotov's attack yesterday, when he denounced the whole range of the western powers' policy in Germany, had killed all hope even for superficial Big Four agreements on Germany and that little if anything could be accomplished by going on here.

Some had speculated that he might suggest a compromise on reparations.

Possibly that was what Molotov intended. Soviet informants said he had the speech prepared for Thursday's council meeting but did not get a chance to deliver it —or perhaps was not ready to. Yesterday, according to this account, he tore up the speech and substituted another. There was considerable speculation that the Soviet minister acted on new instructions from the kremlin to revert to tougher tactics.

What he charged had all been said by various Soviet officials or propaganda agencies before Molotov charged the western powers were profiting on German exports, were buying up German firms, were piling up economic obligations on Germany and trying to "perpetuate the division of Germany."

Harsh Words Fly

When Molotov finished and his statement was translated, harsh words began to fly from the other three corners of the table—words that in the older diplomacy would have been fighting talk when exchanged between foreign ministers.

Marshall declared that Molotov's "method of procedure makes it rather difficult to inspire respect for the dignity of the Soviet Union."

Bevin plunged in swinging verbal blows. Molotov, he said, had dealt to the other foreign ministers "insults" and "abuse" which would be resented by the people of the British empire.

Members of the American delegation present in the room said the tension was electric.

"I suddenly had a sense of being present at a critical moment in world affairs," one of Marshall's advisors said.

Marengo Child Dies Of Strangulation in Crib

Special to The Star

ASHLEY, Dec. 13—Death from accidental strangulation was pronounced as verdict in the death Friday of Richard Allen Dunham, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Dunham of Marengo. BOMBS KILL TWELVE ARABS, WOUND 81

By The Associated Press

JERUSALEM, Dec. 13—Bombs killed 12 Arabs and wounded 81 in Jerusalem and Jaffa attacks today.

Two anti-personnel bombs were tossed into the teeming Arab market place before Jerusalem's ancient Damascus gate, killing six Arabs and injuring 41 others.

A bomb tossed from a speeding truck at a coffeehouse in all-Arab Jaffa killed six more Arabs and injured 40 others.

The Holy Land death toll in Jewish-Arab fighting since the United Nations decision to partition Palestine rose to 210.

Eye-witnesses at Jaffa said the bomb was thrown from an Army truck driven by Jews who entered from the direction of All-Jewish Tel Aviv. The explosive wrecked the coffee house, and damaged an Arab taxi company and the Alhambra motion picture theater.

In Jerusalem's old city police fired machine guns over the heads of the milling Arab crowd after the explosions. Witnesses said the bombs came from two Jewish taxis. The blast damaged two buses. Two of the Jerusalem dead were women.

fied as James Alex and pushed them from the car in suburban McCook and Hodgkins. Baker, Schmikal and Alex were reported by police to have been employes in Nick Kuesis' garage.

Police Lt. John McNamara said that the shootings started after three gunmen appeared at the Kuesis garage last night and argued with John Kuesis over an automobile repair bill.

McNamara said John Kuesis, who was the father of five children, had beaten Daley recently and that they had been on unfriendly terms for the last several weeks after Kuesis had appeared as a witness against Daley during his trial on a robbery charge.

Police said John Kuesis, as well as Daley, had police records dating back several years.

Town Seeks To Rebuild Fire-Wrecked Factory

By The Associated Press

SCIO, O., Dec. 13—Folks in this Harrison county village of around 1,300 will hold a mass meeting tonight to figure out how to rebuild the main source of their livelihood —the fire-wrecked Scio Pottery company plant.

The big problem on the docket is how to procure 2,000 tons of hard-to-get steel, and a committee will be appointed to iron that out with Weirton Steel Co. officials.

But Louis P. Reese, who built the multi-million dollar plant practically from scratch, didn't appear too worried.

"This isn't so bad," he said. "When I came to this plant I had nothing. Now, even though we have no fire insurance, we can rebuild—if we get the steel."

NEW FAIRGROUNDS WILL BE BEAUTIFUL

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 13—The state of Ohio plans on building the state fair beautiful—"an institution of education of very great value to the state."

"We feel it should be of such a high order," explained former Gov. Myers Y. Cooper, chairman of the state fairgrounds commission, "that it will lend itself to be the most beautiful grounds in the state of Ohio."

In an interview after a commission meeting yesterday, former Governor Cooper told newsmen:

"I think you can say it is the consensus of the commission that the state fair belongs in Franklin county."

But, Cooper's assurance the state big exposition will remain in Franklin county did little to narrow down the final site for the projected new fairgrounds.

Seven possible spots now are under consideration, Chairman Cooper said, adding three of them were receiving "considerable attention." These he listed as:

(1) A tract along route 161, east of suburban Worthington, where water and sewer facilities would have to be installed.

(2) A tract near Don Scott airport, northwest from downtown Columbus, also needing an outlay for water and sewers.

(3) A tract north of Ackerman, north of Ohio State university farms, which Cooper said "has many things in its favor" and "lends itself to public services at a minimum cost."

Other proposed sites: a tract a mile east of Obetz; one north of Trabue road, west of the Scioto river; a tract along Joyce avenue, opposite suburban Linden, and a tract west of Columbus along West Broad street.

Boy, 2, Prepares To Mark Last Christmas

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 13—Jimmy Martin, not quite 2, has come here to spend perhaps his last Christmas. And, although his body is wasting away, his spirit remained unflagging today.

Doctors at Children's hospital say Jimmy is suffering from xanthomatosis, a long name for an incurable ailment afflicting a little boy. A chronic debilitating disease of metabolism, it is similar in effect to leukemia.

Jimmy, who will be two in February, has been ill since birth. His father, Albert Martin, brought him here from Pomeroy, O. for treatment.

Although he is often in great pain, Jimmy is conscious of all the things that delight a little boy.

There will be a tree at the hospital and a gift or two for Jimmy who may never see another Christmas.

Check Trunk of Auto For Clues in Murder

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Dec 13—The slaying of Elmo C. Rice, 26-year-old Columbus real estate dealer who was trying to sell his 1947 automobile privately, still puzzled police today.

Investigators turned to the locked trunk of the dead man's car for possible clues, while police intensified the search for a middle-aged man who called for a demonstration in Rice's machine.

Rice's bullet-piercerd body was found Wednesday on a suburban bridge and his abandoned automobile, the back seat splattered with blood, near the Columbus police station.

Rice's wife told police her husband had taken a prospective buyer for the automobile on a demonstration ride and did not return.

COMMITTEE TO HEAR FROM PAULEY AGAIN

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13—The senate appropriations committee today promised an early decision on whether to touch off a full scale investigation of commodity market speculation by government officials.

The group has decided in any case that it wishes to hear further from Edwin W. Pauley, special assistant to the secretary of the Army, who already has disclosed himself as a speculator in the million dollar class. The date of the next appearance by Pauley, a former Democratic national treasurer, has yet to be fixed.

Chairman Bridges (R-NH) said the decision whether to expand the inquiry will be made after the committee examines reports from the heads of five government departments on whether any of their personnel are using inside knowledge to profit in the grain markets.

Bridges told a reporter this probably will be done early next week, since the committee has been advised that checks are under way in the state, treasury and agriculture departments. The committeee has asked for similar information from the departments of commerce and national defense.

Pauley told the committee yesterday that there was "no impropriety" in his trading in commodities.

He agreed to come back later with a record of all his commodity transactions during the period he has been in the government service. He told the senators his holdings when he came to the department of the army were something under $1,000,000.

TRUMAN

that no action is necessary on them at the special session.

President Quoted

The report quoted President Truman as saying Nov. 9, 1946:

"The price administrator has advised me that, with so much of the economy freed from price controls, climing to the rest would, in his judgment, lead to distortions in production and diversion of goods to an extent far outweighing any benefit that could be achieved."

The report said:

"The fear of the committee has been that the imposition of selective price controls at this time might bring about precisely those 'distortions' and that 'diversion' which the President feared a year ago.

"On its face, an attempt at selective price control might diminish the production of precisely the goods that are in short supply, and might tend to divert production to less scarce and less essential goods that are not controlled."

The report attributed high prices to two basic factors:

1. Prevailing money and credit policies.

2. The unusually large foreign demand for scarce American goods.

Consistent with this appraisal, the committee said, its bill calls for continuing export controls as requested by the president. These controls expire Feb. 29 unless congress acts.

Shappard Murder Trial Ends

swer as to when Snappard decided to kill the girl in the signed confession obtained the day after these statements were supposed to have been made?" he asked.

"Because," he said, answering his own question, "they never were made. Otherwise, the county prosecutor, who has been in office for seven years and a member of the bar for ten, would have seen to it that any statement by Shappard as to when he made up his mind to kill the girl would have been included in the statement submitted as evidence in this case."

Final Defense Argument

Ralph Carhart, continuing the final argument in defense of Snappard, pointed out that Reed in the bill of particulars which amplifies allegations made by the state, failed to include that the state would attempt to prove premeditation. He further declared the state had failed to prove that fact necessary to return a verdict of guilty to the charge of first degree murder.

He concluded his statement to the jury by reviewing the defendants Army record.

In closing Carhart admitted "there is no question but what Ray Shappard is guilty of manslaughter and should be punished, but guilty of first degree murder, no."

Rebuttal by Wilhelm

In final rebuttal for the state, Attorney Wilhelm immediately charged the defense submitted Shappard's war record solely to arouse sympathy of the jury toward the defendant.

To the defense's claim that the crime was perpetrated while Shappard was intoxicated and thus not premeditated, Wilhelm charged, "He wasn't too drunk to drive an automobile, was he, or to transact the business about the rollers, or to go to a dance?"

"You members of the jury have but to answer two questions, the degree of the crime and whether or not to recommend mercy," he said. The state has offered testimony that Shappard admitted saying he'd made up his mind to kill the girl before he crossed Route 23 and went into a side road in a lonely less populated neighborhood."

"If he had wanted to find aid for her, why did he go to that desolate area? He would have not found a doctor in the woods along that road."

"Mr. Carhart has said Shappard is not like a Dillinger, a classic criminal. That is right. Dillinger did not kill school children."

Motion Reintroduced

When the defense attorneys rested their case at 4:30 p. m. yesterday afternoon without Shappard on the stand, Ralph E. Carhart immediately reintroduced a series of motions which had delayed the proceedings 45 minutes at the beginning of the afternoon session.

Although Judge Smith had ruled against the motions, argued throughout the noon recess and until 1:45 p. m., Carhart brought them up again after the taking of testimony had been completed.

One motion alleged that the state had not proved the allegations of the indictment and asked that a directed verdict of not guilty be returned and the other questioned the jurisdiction of the Marion county court to act in the case since the body of the slain girl was found in Delaware county.

In proceeding with the trial of the case here Prosecuting Attorney Reed said he acted under a state statute providing that where a crime is committed within 100 rods of a county line it may be prosecuted in either county.

Arguments on 100 Rod Law

In his argument in the judge's chambers in support of the latter motion Carhart held that the 100 rods law had been declared unconstitutional by the state supreme court. The prosecution is reported to have countered with the claim that the case in which the ruling was given was not applicable to the situation here.

Judge Smith first overruled the motions when the afternoon session resumed at 1:45 p. m. He again overruled them when the defense rested.

With the motions out of the way the introduction of defense testimony was resumed, but the delay created a tense situation among attorneys, court attaches and spectators.

Courtroom Crowded

The courtroom was packed with all 80 seats filled and an estimated 150 persons standing. The crowd was so closely packed that Bailiff Fred Miller had difficulty in leading the jury from the jury room into the courtroom. Patrolman Clyde Hardin of the city police force, who has been assigned to duty on the courtroom door, assisted in clearing the standees away to make a passage way for the jurors.

While waiting for opening of the afternoon session the 13 jurors were in the jury room, unaware that a move had been made by the defense to remove the case from the court's jurisdiction.

Finally at 1:45 p. m. the bailiff brought in the jury, the attorneys took their places at the counsel tables and Judge Smith emerged from his chambers. Immediately the attorneys gathered at the desk of Court Stenographer Robert Hedges while Attorney Carhart dictated into the records the overruled motions.

Defense testimony was directed mainly to show that the body of the girl was found in Delaware county and to trace Shappard's movements from the time he left work at the Scioto Ordnance Plant at 3:30 p. m. Sept. 19, the day of the slaying, until he reached his home in Prospect about three hours later.

Cross Examination Brief

Few of the defense witnesses were cross-examined by the state's attorneys Prosecutor Reed and Special Assistant Wilhelm.

Grover Snyder of near Waldo was the first witness called. He testified he owned farm land north of the spot where the body was found and that the spot the body lay was in Delaware county. On cross-examination Attorney Wilhelm asked Mr. Snyder if he knew where the girl was killed. He answered he did not.

Charles Almendinger Jr. of Prospect, driver of the school bus in which Roxie and other Prospect pupils traveled to the Chesterville football game, testified Roxie left the bus with the others at the school about 6:30 p. m. the night she was killed.

Carey McGinnis of 822 Congress street, Omar bread truck driver, told of seeing a model A Ford car on route 47 the evening of Sept. 19. He said the car was traveling so rapidly as to attract his attention and that he reported the incident to the sheriff the following day. (His description of the car was one of the clues that led officers to question Shappard in connection with the case.)

Saw Girl on Road

The next three witnesses, Barbara McGuire, Virgil Fox and Betty Risner, all of Prospect, testified they saw Roxie walking east on Water street in Prospect and route 47 as she made her way home after returning from the football game.

George Dodrill, who lives on route 47 two and one-half miles east of Prospect, testified that about dark the night of Sept. 19 he heard a woman scream, "Let me out, let me out," as a car drove past his house.

On cross-examination by Mr. Wilhelm, Mr. Dodrill testified the shortest route to Norton from his home would be about eight miles. (The body was found 1.7 miles east of Norton.)

Carl Zink, courthouse custodian, who lives on route 47 three and one-half miles east of Prospect, testified he saw an old model A Ford driven rapidly past his home in an easterly direction. He placed the time at about 8:20 p. m.

The next few witnesses were Prospect residents with whom Shappard worked at the Scioto Ordnance Plant. They included Charles B. Cook, Glen Skinner, his brother Robert Skinner, and Francis Cloud.

Their testimony covered their actions from the time they left the ordnance plant at 3:30 p. m. Sept. 19 until they returned to Prospect about 6:30 p. m.

Tell of Visit To Bar

All testified that the four together with Shappard, stopped at the Crystal bar and had six or seven bottles of high powered beer in slightly less than two hours. From Marion they drove to Blanche's place at Newmans and had one or two more beers and then went to Prospect, where they went to their homes.

All testified under cross-examination that none of the party had taken any whisky during the afternoon. Robert Skinner said he thought Shappard was "under the influence of alcohol." Skinner denied he was intoxicated, saying, he "could drink more than Shappard." The witness said he saw Shappard at a route 98 roadhouse dance later the night of Sept. 19 and that he "acted normal."

Joe Rawlins, who lives a half mile east of where the body was found, placed the spot in Delaware county, as did Sheriff Earl Fravel of Delaware. The sheriff said he was called to the scene by Marion County Deputy Fink when the body first was found. He said the Delaware county prosecutor, Clyde Lewis, also was present and that the coroner of his county made an examination of the body.

Tells of Finding Hammer

Wayne Rawlins, son of the previous witness, told how he found the hammer weapon lying in the grass and weeds on the north side of the road a short distance from the body. Similar testimony regarding the location of the body was given by C. E. Ashbrook of Norton. Marlboro township (Delaware county) said the place where the body was found was in Delaware county. Kenneth Graham of Mt. Gilead, a registered surveyor and engineer, told of a survey he made at the request of the defense lawyers, which showed the body was found in Delaware county 18½ feet from the county line.

Donald Sloan, Marion cemetery superintendent, Miss Mary Ellen Kerr, Marion registrar of vital statistics, and Virgil Lockhart identified burial and death certificates showing the place of death as Delaware county.

BOTH SIDES CLAIM VICTORY IN ROME

By The Associated Press

ROME, Dec. 13 — A 48-hour Communist-led general strike in Rome—the latest skirmish in the left's unceasing war against Italy's middle-of-the-road cabinet—ended today after a steely show of government might. Both sides claimed victory.

The Communist - dominated province, which ordered the work, Chamber of Labor of Rome stoppage Wednesday night and called it off last night, effective at midnight, used only one word in its daily news bulletin this morning: "Victory."

Il Popolo, the organ of Premier Alcide De Gasperi's Christian Democrat party, declared just as flatly in a secretly set and printed issue timed to appear as the strike ended: "Strike Fails."

Giuseppe Di Vittorio, Communist secretary-general of the National Labor Confederation (CGIL), who helped negotiate the end of the work stoppage, told 120 union leaders who endorsed the chamber's strike-ending vote, the victory was "brilliant."

A Chamber of Labor communique said appropriations by the city of Rome and Rome provnce, added to what the national government already had offered for winter relief for the unemployed, satisfied its demands.

OHIO G.O.P. TO PICK SLATE OF DELEGATES

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 13—The state Republican organization's slate of candidates for the 53 delegates which Ohio will send to the national convention in Philadelphia next June will be selected Jan. 7 at a meeting here of Ohio G.O.P. executive and central committees.

State Republican Chairman Fred H. Johnson of Zanesville sent out letters calling the meeting yesterday, but he would not comment on possible action other than to observe the committee would transact "such business as may come before it."

This will give the organization less than a month to obtain signatures to petitions for its slate of nine delegates-at-large and 44 district delegates, all pledged to Sen. Robert A. Taft for the Republican presidential nomination.

Filing deadline is Feb. 14.

The state committee is expected to name Johnson, Sen. John W. Bricker, Gov. Thomas J. Herbert, Congressman Clarence J. Brown, national committeeman, and Mrs. Katharine Kennedy Brown, national committeewoman, among candidates for delegates-at-large.

The committee also is expected to endorse Governor Herbert for a second term, and to add its approval to State Treasurer Don H. Ebright, Attorney General Hugh S. Jenkins, Lt. Gov. Paul M. Herbert and Secretary of State Edward J. Hummel.

PREVIEWS OF COMING ATTRACTIONS AT THE THEATERS

Comedy Stars Billed In Picture at Palace

"The Wistful Widow of Wagon Gap," a fun-film starring Bud Abbott, Lou Costello and Marjorie Main, will be shown Sunday through Thursday at the Palace theater. It is the 20th comedy in which the two comedians have appeared together.

It is laugh packed with Marjorie Main playing the title role—a widow with seven children who makes romantic passes at Lou Costello. The story derives from an old Montana law, still on the state's statute books, concerning gun duels. The law provides that a killer be responsible for the family and debts of his victims.

Bud Abbott and Lou Costello, as housewares salesmen, find their way into the wild western town of Wagon Gap in Montana. There Costello is charged with shooting a no-good resident, and under the law must support the victim's family and pay all the debts. Marjorie Main is the widow and she and her seven children become Costello's charges.

Wednesday and Thursday, "The Long Night," starring Henry Fonda, Barbara Bel Geddes, Vincent Price and Ann Dvorak, will be shown. "The Long Night" combines romance and suspense with realism. Henry Fonda portrays a steel worker who falls in love with a beautiful young girl, only to find that an older man has a strange influence upon her.

"Her Husband's Affairs," starring Lucille Ball and Franchot Tone, is billed for showing Friday and Saturday.

The plot is concerned with the frantic antics of an advertising "genius" with a means for getting into trouble, his nimble-witted wife who rescues him, a wacky inventor with a "miracle" shaving cream which grows hair instead and a hilarious "murder" trial.

In addition to the screen film, a stage show will be presented by a group of students from Harding High school.

MAUREEN O'HARA AND WALTER PIDGEON have the lead romantic roles in "How Green Was My Valley," the film masterpiece which won six Academy Awards and which is now playing through Monday at the Ohio theater in an encore engagement. The two stars and a scene from the picture are shown here.

Technicolor Musical On State Program

"The Time, The Place and The Girl," the technicolor musical production starring Dennis Morgan, Jack Carson, Janis Paige and Martha Vickers, is the main attraction of a double feature Sunday and Monday at the State theater.

The story is about Steve Ross and Jef Howard, played by Dennis Morgan and Jack Carson, proprietors of a "swing" nightclub destined never to open. The club's short life is occasioned by the presence next door of a great symphonic conductor and his beautiful daughter.

Completing the double billing will be "Vigilantes Ride", with Russell Hayden.

Tuesday and Wednesday, the double feature will be "Riverboat Rhythm" and "Sagebrush Heroes". Leon Errol and Glenn Vernon are starred in the former, and heading the cast in the latter are Charles Starrett and Barbara Worth.

"Dicky Tracy", starring Morgan Conway and Anne Jeffreys, and "Partners of the Plains", with William Boyd and George "Gabby" Hayes, will be shown Thursday through Saturday.

Two Popular Movies Brought Back to Ohio

A memorable motion picture "How Green Was My Valley," starring Walter Pidgeon, Maureen O'Hara, Donald Crisp, Roddy McDowall and Barry Fitzgerald, is back for a return showing at the Ohio theater now through Monday.

It is a story of the Morgan family, of which the father and three sons work in a coal mine. It tells of a family whose peace and prosperity are threatened by the increasing troubles of modern life. Walter Pidgeon portrays the town pastor, with Maureen O'Hara as his sweetheart.

Also playing a return engagement for four days starting Tuesday will be "Miracle on 34th Street," co-starring Maureen O'Hara and John Payne.

This is a story of a young mother, an executive in a large department store in New York, and of her small daughter, who is excited about the appearance of Santa Claus. However, the mother will have nothing to do with the belief that there is a Kris Kringle, and tries to make her daughter believe this. However, a man appears who says his name is Kris Kringle and that he is Santa Claus.

The latest March of Time, "Your Doctors—1947" will be shown on the same program with "Miracle on 34th Street." This film takes audiences for the first time into such world-famed centers of medical knowledge as New York's Academy of Medicine and in some of America's great hospitals.

Opening Saturday will be a double feature, "Anthony Adverse," starring Fredric March and Olivia De Havilland, and "Jezebel," with Bette Davis and Henry Fonda. They will be shown for four days.

ST. MARY IRISH DEFEAT RICHWOOD, 53-26

Dick Schuler Outscores Tigers Singlehanded, Nets 28 Points

St. Mary's Fighting Irish stormed all over Richwood last night when swish artist Dick Schuler outscored the Tigers singlehanded and his mates added 28 markers to his 28 points to win handily, 53-26.

Richwood enjoyed an early five-point lead, and knotted up the count twice in the third period, after the locals had forged ahead, but the Irish poured it on in the fourth frame to win going away.

At the half the score read St. Mary 20, Richwood 15, but it was still an open game. Late in the third period Dick Schuler hit a hot streak and picked up three baskets and Bob Stuber another to give the Irish a sizeable lead. Coach R. D. Fetter of Richwood put in his second team as the gap widened.

Guard Bob Stuber, whom Irish Coach Gene Fetter held responsible for breaking up at least 15 Richwood tallies, left the game briefly in the exciting third stanza when he received a cut over his eye after grabbing for a ball, but returned to finish the game.

Schuler had his best night of the current season and ran his four-game total to 72 points as he connected on at least two out of three attempts.

John Baldauf opened the scoring with a tip shot from Jim Moloney but failed to connect again until the second half when he racked up three more field goals and two foul shots for a second-high 10-point total.

Richwood guard Les Wall connected on four tosses to lead the invaders.

St. Mary reserves defeated Richwood 34-26, with Bill Merchant scoring 22 points. Shields netted nine for the Tigers.

St. Mary goes to Ashley Tuesday night for a try at the Aces.

NO RULE AGAINST IT

By The United Press

CINCINNATI, O., Dec. 13—Stu Holcomb, Purdue university football coach, said today in answer to Ohio State complaints that there was no Big Nine rule "against Ohio boys playing for Ohio coaches in Indiana." "I'm an Ohio State man myself," he said. "My four assistants are Ohioans who naturally have Ohio connections and friends. There's no Big Nine rule against Ohio boys playing for Ohio coaches in Indiana." His statement was in answer to complaints from Ohio State supporters that 11 former Ohio high school football stars won numerals on the Boilermakers freshman squad of the past season.

CARDINGTON EDGED BY JOHNSVILLE, 44-42

Cardington High School lost a close basketball game to Johnsville on the winner's court last night, 44-42, after apparently tieing the hosts by sinking two baskets in the last ten seconds. One of the baskets, however, was ruled out since a foul was committed just before it was made.

Bill Maxwell scored 15 points to lead the Cardington attack and Donaldson made 18 for the winners.

Cardington reserves won, 31-25.

Demaret, with 132 for 36 holes, had his closest company in persistent Ed Furgol of Detroit at 134. A stroke away were Walt Burkemo and Sammy Byrd, both of Detroit, and Dave Douglas, Wilmington, Del.

TITLES AT STAKE IN PRO GRID WINDUP

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Dec. 13 — One championship and two divisional titles are down for decision tomorrow as the All-American conference completes its second season and the National Football league closes out its regular schedule.

The Cleveland Browns and the New York Yankees battle for the conference's championship in the Yankee Stadium and in the remote event the game winds up in a tie, the loop's rules provide for the elevens to be recognized as co-champions.

Meanwhile, the Chicago Bears and the Chicago Cardinals clash in Chicago for the National's Western Division flag and the Philadelphia Eagles take on Green Bay at home in an attempt to tie the idle Pittsburgh Steelers for the Eastern Division crown.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

by Hugh S. Fullerton, jr.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Dec. 13 — The Chicago stadium, seeking to build up its collegiate basketball program, is ballyhooing the 1947-48 season as "the year of the peerless pivotmen." Those fancy words mean there are a heck of a lot of good centers who will appear on the stadium court and elsewhere—for example Alex Groza, Kentucky; Jack Kerris, Loyola; John Brennan, Notre Dame; Ward Williams, Indiana; Ed Milkan, De Paul; Jim McIntyre, Minnesota and Alex Hannum, Southern California. This department will string along with Groza, until a better player shows up, on the theory that if there's a better center around, Baron Adoph Rupp likely would have him on the Kentucky squad.

MEL OTT, who couldn't pry a starting pitcher away from another National league club during the recent baseball meetings is hopeful that Andy Tomasic, the former Temple U. footballer, will come through for the Giants. "I haven't seen him," says Mel, "but he struck out 278 men at Trenton and has a lot of spirit." The Oklahoma Aggies basketballers call Hank Iba a slave driver when he makes them run up and down the stadium steps 20 minutes to strengthen their legs. Spec Sanders, the Yankee footballer, did it four hours at a stretch when he was summering in Stillwater.

Miami Coach Screens Squad for Sun Bowl

By The Associated Press

OXFORD, O., Dec. 13—Sid Gillman, Miami university football coach, today announced a list of 37 players screened from his 55-man squad to continue practice for the Redskins' game with Texas Tech in the Sun Bowl at El Paso, Tex., New Year's day.

Gillman said he expected at least 35 of the picked group would make the trip to Texas.

Included on the Sun Bowl roster was back Bill Stonet of Galion.

8 Big Nine Cage Teams Set for Games Tonight

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Dec. 13—Michigan ranked with Indiana and Minnesota as preseason favorites in the Big Nine basketball title race, opens its season tonight at Ann Arbor against western Michigan.

Including the Wolverines' debut, seven games feature Big Nine teams on tonight's busy card.

Notre Dame, which was spilled by Illinois, 40-38 last Monday, faces Northwestern in Chicago stadium. De Paul meets Oklahoma, which topped Ohio State 62-53, in the second game as the annual stadium doubleheader season opens.

Pitt is at Illinois, Carelton at Indiana, North Dakota U. at Iowa, Nebraska at Minnesota and Ohio State at Marquette.

Indiana will be seeking its second consecutive victory after trouncing Depauw 59-43. The Gophers will be chasing their first triumph after St. Louis surprised them 50-42 in their debut.

NEW SCOUTING APPROACH

By The United Press

BOSTON, Dec. 13 — Cecil (Tex) Hughson, big right-handed pitcher who failed to live up to expectations for the Boston Red Sox last season, was scheduled today for an elbow operation at Johns Hopkins hospital, Baltimore, Md., on Dec. 15.

Jim McCarty of the Brooklyn Dodgers football team gained an average 26.9 yards for his team in 11 pass catches in 1946.

MIAMI MEN DOMINATE AP ALL-OHIO COLLEGE

Don Kay, Former Harding Tackle, Makes 3rd Team.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 13—Miami's rollicking Redskins romped to four first team berths on the 1947 Associated Press All-Ohio football honorary squad today as coaches and sports writers named five seniors, four sophomores and two juniors to the all-star varsity.

The Oxford crew, tied 6-6 by Xavier's Musketeers but victor in eight other frays, was the only one of the state's 39 colleges able to get more than one representative on the top 11. Even Denison's Big Red, winner of nine straight, was held to a lone entry.

Four Ohio conference players and seven from the non-league schools grabbed the coveted berths, and their ages ranged from 18-year-old Art Bok, Dayton's star halfback, to 26-year-old Les Rideout, 200-pound tackle from Bowling Green.

Miami, in dominating the All-Ohio as it hasn't been dominated in the history of the all-star selections, placed end Bill Hoover, center Paul Dietzel, quarterback Mel Olix and halfback Ara Parseghian on the first string. Dietzel was second-team quarterback on The Associated Press Little All-America.

Local Boy Makes 3rd Team

Don Kay, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl S. Kay of 559 Courtland avenue, made third team guard. Don is a sophomore at Xavier, stands six feet tall and weighs 212 pounds. He was a student at Ohio State university for two years before leaving for three years service in the army. He entered Xavier this summer. He played tackle for Harding until graduating in 1943.

Speedy Pleasant Cagers Upset Caledonia in County Loop Tilt

Speed and cleverness plus a tight defense by the Pleasant Townshippers upset the high scoring Caledonia champions last night on the Pleasant floor 32-28. It was the second loss in league play in two years for the Donians.

In other games in the Marion county league Morral maintained a perfect record with a 39-28 decision over Prospect, Meeker whipped New Bloomington, 49-22, Waldo bested Martel, 43-30 and Kirkpatrick eked out 36-34 win over Claridon.

Pleasant trounced Caledonia mainly on the strength of a strong defense plus rapid ball handling and excessive speed. Coach Melvin Bernow's lads stopped Gene Fleming and Kenneth Comstock with a bunching man-for-man defense. Seldom could the Caledonia ball handlers succeed in getting the ball inside the defense to Fleming who specializes in pivots shots around the basket. The bunched defense prevented Comstock from dribbling around the defense and his shots were hurried by the Pleasant defenders. The Townshippers so ganged the rebound that big Fleming could not get in position for the rebounds.

Mayers Is Speedy

The speed of Charles Mayers, Pleasant forward, was outstanding and he beat the Caledonia defense down the floor for 13 points. Pleasant grabbed the lead in the opening minutes and maintained it until one minute before the end of the third period, leading 20 to 17 at the half. Late in this period, a basket and a foul each by Robertson and Comstock put the Donians in the lead for the first time. During this session, Pleasant scored only one point and their rapid ball handling slowed down.

Caledonia increased the lead to 25 to 21 before Pleasant started to click again. With four minutes in the game a basket by Dickason, a foul by Gorby and two baskets by Mayers put Pleasant back in the lead. During the last three minutes the Townshippers kept the clock running most of the time with clever ball possession.

In the Morral-Prospect contest the North Side team as usual saved their big scoring plays until the last half though leading 15 to 8 at half time. Weston led the point parade with 13. A capacity crowd also saw the Morral reserves triumph over the Prospect seconds, 27-16, and the Jr. High team win over Prospect juniors, 28-16.

Jones Wins for Kirkpatrick

A field goal in the last ten seconds of play by Jones gave Kirkpatrick a 36-34 win over Claridon, in a contest played on the losers floor.

Meeker got going in the second half and ran up the score against a hapless New Bloomington outfit 49-28 after leading 17 to 9 at the intermission. Parsell, Meeker forward, set the scoring pace for the night with 14 points. The Meeker reserves also triumphed, 11-8, but the New Bloomington Junior High team defeated the Meeker injuries. The game was played on the New Bloomington floor.

After a tie score at the half, Waldo began to click and outscored Martel to win, 43-30. Pickett of Waldo contributed 15 points for the total. The Waldo junior high team also won over Martel, 23--21.

The game between Green Camp and LaRue booked for the LaRue hardwood was postponed because of the prevalence of scarlet fever in the LaRue community.

Seek To Buy Up Contract Of Texas A. and M. Coach

By The Associated Press

DALLAS, Tex., Dec. 13 — A fund-raising campaign to buy up the contract of Head Football Coach Homer Norton of Texas A. and M. college gained force today.

More than $10,000 reportedly had been raised by alumni groups and a total of $20,000 was sought.

Norton has been under fire from the ex-students for two football seasons in which his teams had poor records. Reportedly, he has been sounded out on the proposition of terminating his connection with A. and M. Aug. 31, 1948, and being paid for the remaining two years of his contract.

LESNEVICH CROPS UP IN RETURN BOUT TALK

Louis Says Gus Has as Good a Chance as Walcott.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Dec. 13 — A new Joe Louis-Jersey Joe Walcott battle was building up to an impasse today in the negotiations for a return bout between the champion and the challenger.

Injecting a new note in the controversy over the split decision Jersey Joe lost to Louis a week ago, this latest development grew out of a war of words across Eighth avenue.

Shortly after Louis, indicated at a press conference in the Twentieth Century club that light heavyweight titleholder Gus Lesnevich might be an acceptable opponent for Joe's "last bout," Walcott charged that he was being given the "brushoff."

Louis, apparently mindful of earlier warnings from the Walcott camp that Jersey Joe would be satisfied with nothing less than a 30 per cent cut from a return match, raised the Lesnevich angle.

Deriding Walcott by claiming that Lesnevich was a "more dangerous" puncher, Louis intimated that Gus had at least as good a chance as Walcott of getting the title shot. The champion insisted, however, that it was the promoter's job and not his to make the matches.

"I'm not out for revenge," explained Louis. "Walcott had his chance he ran away. I didn't. I prefer to fight Walcott again, fact is, I'd prefer him because Lesnevich is the more dangerous puncher. If he had me in the same spot as Walcott did he'd knock me out, for Lesnevich would have known what to do with me, but Walcott didn't."

Lesnevich let it be known in no uncertain terms last summer that he wanted no part of a fight with Louis. He insisted that he was quite satisfied with the light heavyweight title alone.

Love's Perilous Path

By ADELE GARRISON

MARY made a quick protest with an affectionate smile. Dicky.

I don't need any privacy from my darling Nunky," she said. "I am most grateful for your speeding Faith on her way. I'm simply perishing to find out what you and Aunt Maggie have cooked up."

If you don't expire in the next 10 minutes you have a chance," he assured her gravely. "I have Katharine tip you off when the door of my bedroom closes behind us. I'll take Fatith that way so as not to delay the game."

He came over to her, bent down and kissed her tenderly.

Keep the chin up, Brat," he said, "and if your aunt's chaste and your equally pure ears stand the pace, have her recount some of the language I used when I heard about your ex boy friend's latest bad Boy Scout escapade on the day. It will blister the paint, but you may enjoy it."

"If you dare call that—that capering cockroach' is the way I used to apply to one of my admirers," her uncle said. He shuddered at the reference to Jack Leslie who so nearly caused her death in the plot of repercussions finally removed him from her life, and the world.

"Ages is ninety-five per cent," she said, "and 'capering cockroach' fits him perfectly, but I'm in the same class with Mother cobra. I don't want even the notion his name. I believe I spoke on it if I did."

"I'm prostrate in the dust at your feet for bringing the thought to mind. Dicky told her. "Forgive me and I'll beat it."

"I forgive you for doing that," she said, "but I'm not sure about the 'ex-boy-friend' talk."

"When I saw it again. 'I'll bet Dicky paraphrased and went out of the room while he shook a shapely fist at him. "I suppose we'll have to wait a few minutes," she said wistfully.

"I'm afraid we will," I told her. "Lean back, shut your eyes and relax. Make your mind a blank. Particular object is already accomplished," she quipped as I obeyed me. Before the lids were up Katharine was in the doorway through which I had gone, and seeing my closed eyes gave me a look which meant "All Clear." She also gestured toward the outside hall, and then to the telephone, and I knew she intended to go down to her own suite while we talked and that she wished me to telephone her when the colloquy was over.

I nodded, and when the door had closed noiselessly behind her I put my hand on Mary's wrist.

'I'm not asleep,' she said opening her eyes, "although I suppose I was giving a good imitation."

'You were," I told her, "but we're now safe from all listeners.'

"How do you know?" she asked curiously.

"Aunt Katharine just gave me the 'All Clear' signal, and pantomimed that she was going over to her own suite, and that I was to telephone her when we were through talking."

'Wouldn't she make a wonderful Indian tracker?' Mary exclaimed with the affectionate admiration in her voice which is always hers for Katharine. 'And if you weren't around, she'd have cornered the world's supply of tact."

'I'm a headlong blunderer compared to Katharine.' I said truthfully and plunged headlong into my story as I saw frowning protest on Mary's face.

The frown lifted quickly, however as I told her of Dicky's plan. She listened with avid attention, laughing heartily at some of Dicky's milder epithets which I took time out to repeat to her, and sighed with gusty relief when I had finished the recital.

'Allah be praised!' she said. The Nunky's plan is perfect. Georges will be scared stiff for fear Noel will find out about those letters and I won't have to tell Noel about them until long after the wedding when the thing comes under the head of finished business."

I almost uttered the words, 'Why tell him ever?' but caught them back in time. She was only following my own canon of keeping no secrets from my husband, but I told myself in justification, Noel distinctly was not Dicky. However, her relations with Noel were not my affair, and I fitted my comment accordingly.

'I think that was what your uncle had in mind," I said. "Now, have you any more questions?"

'Not a single one,' she said.

"Then" I spoke quickly as I started for the telephone. "I'll ring Aunt Katharine, and ask her to come back."

POETRY HEARD, NOT READ IN LIBRARY AT HARVARD

By The United Press

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. — Convinced that poetry has to be heard to be appreciated, a Harvard professor has amassed an unusual collection of phonograph records.

Prof. Frederick C. Packard, who teaches public speaking, records the voices of famous poets, authors and actors. His collection is housed in a special library called the Harvard Vocarium where it is in constant demand by students who prefer to study by ear than by eye.

The idea was born by accident when T. S. Eliot visited Packard's study in 1933. Packard showed him a new recording device and persuaded him to test it out by reading his 'Hollow Men.'
